AS REVENUE MEASURE

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE BELIEVES IT WILL PRODUCE REQUISITE AMOUNT.

FEAR FOR REDUCTIONS

Chairman Simmons and House Members Say Further Reductions Will Mean Loss of Revenue.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Sept. 20.—A critical study of the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill to determine whether it will produce enough revenues for governmental needs, was still under way today when the tariff conference committee removed all restriction against free importation under the present law. Pictures and like art objects must be twenty years old to come in free. The house bill removed the restriction but the senate conferees have insisted on articles on which house members fear a reduction of revenue. There was little prospect when the conference was resumed today that details of the bill could be completed before the end of next week.

Art Works Duty Free.
Supporters of the demand for free importation of works of art expressed great satisfaction today over the decision of the conference committee to remove all restriction against free importation under the present law. Pictures and like art objects must be twenty years old to come in free. The house bill removed the restriction but the senate conferees have insisted on articles on which house members fear a reduction of revenue. There was little prospect when the conference was resumed today that details of the bill could be completed before the end of next week.

Wood Pulp Schedule.
Two other important decisions definitely removed the proposed countervailing duty against the free importation of wood pulp. The senate conferees have insisted on articles on which house members fear a reduction of revenue. There was little prospect when the conference was resumed today that details of the bill could be completed before the end of next week.

Compromise at about one and a half cents a pound was reached on Zante currants upon which Greek importers had made a hard fight. The house provision putting prescriptive duties on currants was dropped. The free last was accepted.

The same members also receded from their rate on hats, and the house rate of 40% ad valorem was adopted.

The tariff conference committee today voted to leave bananas on the free list.

After a long controversy in which the influence of the Rev. Dr. Wilson was thrown in favor of the continued free importation of the fruits, the senate conferees receded from their amendment which would have imposed a duty of one-tenth of a cent per pound.

The senate conferees also gave away as to the duty on lemons, limes, grape fruit and similar fruits, leaving the rates as fixed by the house based on the measurements of packages. The senate had fixed a flat rate of one-half of a cent per pound. The house rates agreed to are a slight reduction over existing rates.

Of the many children named after President Woodrow Wilson probably none can boast the hardihood of a little Eskimo boy who was carried 2 miles in a temperature of thirty degrees below zero to the coast.

The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Thompson secretary of the board of home missions of the Presbyterian church wrote in a letter received by President Wilson that he had been endowed with that name who at two weeks of age could stand such a trip he should do well in the world.

Mr. Thompson enclosed a report from the Rev. D. W. Cram at Poin Barrow, Alaska, that the northern mission of the church in which Dr. Cram wrote: "It was natural that the first boy born after the first of March should be named Woodrow Wilson."

Albany Almost Deserted City Compared With Earlier Activity—Legislature Adjourned.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Albany, Sept. 20.—Compared with its activity in the earlier part of the week, Albany was a deserted city today. Practically all of the principal figures in the Sulzer impeachment trial were out of town, the court of impeachment having adjourned until Monday and both houses of the legislature until Thursday.

No more clashes between Governor Sulzer and acting governor Glynn are anticipated after the governor's letter of yesterday acknowledging that he no longer is governor. The governor has not been at his office in the capitol for two days, and it is said he will not return unless the court of impeachment acquits him.

SITTING AS JUDGE IN SULZER TRIAL

Justice Frederick Collin, sitting as judge in the Sulzer trial.

Justice Frederick Collin of the New York court of appeals is sitting in the high court of impeachment in the trial of Governor Sulzer. Several other New York judges are sitting with the New York senate in the case, and will help decide the fate of Sulzer.

His counsel has notified acting governor Glynn that any attaches of the governor's office who may be of any assistance to him are at his service. The governor Glynn will make no attempt to move into the governor's quarters, but will continue to direct the state's business from his temporary headquarters.

Governor Sulzer is maintaining absolute silence. Reports that he has gone into "seclusion" are somewhat exaggerated for he frequently appears on the streets in his automobile, but he avoids the measures of the press.

Counsel for James C. Garrison, the newspaper man and former state employee jailed Thursday when he refused to answer questions propounded by the speaker of the assembly, planned to start a legal fight in their client's behalf today.

Time Garrison remained in jail. He said the experience was novel and not unpleasant.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Sept. 20.—Representative Edward Everett Brown, of Wisconsin, serving his first term in congress has a place on the powerful house labor committee.

Republican leader Mann appeared before that committee today in support of his bill to create a federal labor safety bureau. When he had finished a long argument chairman Lewis took notice of rather a diffident elderly man who had taken no part in the proceedings seated alone at the end of the table.

"Would you like to make a statement before the committee on this bill?" asked the chairman in a polite tone calculated to put the man at his ease. The elderly one looked about in a surprised embarrassed way.

"Why no," he returned. "I am Mr. Brown of Wisconsin, a member of the committee."

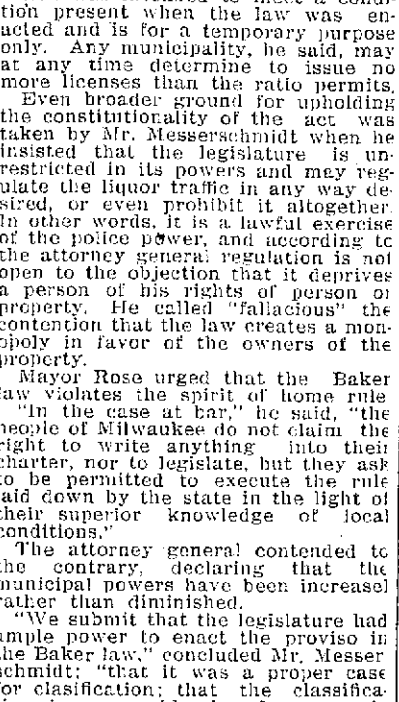

Whereupon the new found committee member was introduced to his colleagues.

BROOKLINE AMATEUR WINNER OF HIGHEST HONORS IN GOLFING

Francis Oumet a School Boy, Defeats Vardon and Ray, English Professionals.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Fort Brookline, Sept. 20.—Francis Oumet, a school boy amateur of Brookline, won the highest golfing honors in the country if not in the world by defeating Harry Vardon and Edward Ray the English professionals by five and six strokes respectively in the play off for the American open championship today.

The victory of the boy carried with it gold medal and the custody of the championship cup by his home organization the Woodland Golf club of Newton.

No amateur in this country and only one abroad has ever gained such golfing fame.

There were few of the five thousand persons following the play who felt at the start that the youth could possibly vanquish such renowned veterans as the two former British champions.

In order to win Oumet was obliged to play the best golf of the week.

When he had accomplished the first sixteen holes in sixty-five strokes and more licenses than the ratio permitted three Vardon's his closest opponent broke under the strain.

Oumet did not get into the lead until the turn for the home hole. All three made the half way mark in even thirty, but after that he was never headed.

Enthusiastic followers carried the victor on their shoulders to the clubhouse where Secretary John Reid, J. of the United States Golf Association made the presentation speech.

Vardon received $170 and Ray $100 for second and third prizes. The final score was Oumet 72, Vardon 77, Ray 78.

The scores Oumet out 38, in 34, total 72. Vardon out 38, in 40, total 77. Ray out 38, in 40, total 78.

West Salem, Wis., Sept. 20.—"Direct us to the best hotel," said a youthful bridegroom, George Evans of Chicago, to the proprietor of the hotel in which he and his bride were lodged last night. "Can't do it, mister," said the constable. "The board in house is all ready check full and won't hold another. Only place I can put ye is in the calaboose."

There was no other accommodation in the town to be had so the honeymoon couple was escorted to the town jail where they spent the night in one cell, while a hilarious carfare lodged in the other. This morning the friendly constable unlocked the door and the honeymooners proceeded on their way to friends in the country.

At the village board of health this occurrence the village board of health is passing an ordinance requiring villagers to open their homes to travelers in cases of this kind.

EASTERN FOOTBALL SEASON

TWENTY-ONE INJURED

Eight Coaches Derailed, Rolling Down Embankment Landing Upside Down—Was Rounding Curve.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Manhattan, Kan., Sept. 20.—Twenty-one passengers were injured, one probably fatally, when passenger train No. 40 on the C. & R. and P. railroad, eastbound from Denver and Colorado Springs to St. Louis, was derailed on a curve a mile west of here this morning.

Right coaches left the rails, one of them the steel baggage and smoking car combined, which rolled down a twenty foot embankment turning over three times and landing upside down. The smoking compartment was full of passengers, most of whom were injured, but none seriously save J. P. Baldy of Herrington, Kans., who was crushed by a falling trunk. He probably will die.

The smoking compartment was inundated and the passengers beset by a flood of steam from a conflagration in the baggage compartment.

Of the others injured J. O. Thompson, conductor of the train, who was injured in the steel chair car and in the three sleeping cars were shaken up and some badly bruised.

A defective rail is said to have caused the accident. The train was running about twenty miles an hour when it left the rails.

WISCONSIN CONVICTS

Possible That Beginning May Be Made This Fall—Begin in Northern Part of State.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Appleton, Wis., Sept. 20.—Convict labor from the state prison will be used on the roads of Wisconsin early next year and possibly later this season, according to Governor McGovern. In speaking of the prison labor the governor said that the commission was now working on the problem and while it was possible that some of the prisoners might be liberated this fall for road purposes that in all probability they will not be placed until spring.

They will be sent to the northern part of the state the governor being of the opinion that the fright it might give to unprotected women and children to have unguarded prisoners working in their midst might be too much and he thinks it best to first place the men in a more unsettled region of the north and gradually work them into other sections.

Attorneys Await Approval of Thaw's Mother, Who is Expected at Concord Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Concord, N. H., Sept. 20.—The plans of the defense in the extradition proceedings against Harry K. Thaw were completed this morning and awaited the approval of the fugitive's mother and sister, who with the latter's husband, George Lauder Carnegie, have expected lately in the day. Thaw was anxious to explain to his family his reasons for placing his case wholly in the hands of his New Hampshire counsel. The latter are endeavoring to complete harmony with the former Governor Stone of Pennsylvania, the personal representative of the Thaw family.

Reports that Governor Felker was inclined to give Thaw his liberty and leave the disposition of the case to the federal courts, finds no support in a statement from the executive today in which he said he would approach the extradition proceedings on Thursday with an open mind. His only determination was, he said, that justice should be done.

Thaw slept later than usual this morning and when he appeared at breakfast he was ready for another hard day's work with his correspondence and law books which is searching for precedents bearing on his case.

"My counsel are working very hard to know," said he, "and I shall do my part."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Sept. 20.—The body of William Gaynor, late mayor of New York, will be brought to the Gaynor home in Brooklyn late this afternoon and placed at twilight in the city hall where it will lie in state until Monday morning. Close friends of the Gaynor family including a sprinkling of city officials assembled at the Gaynor home today for private funeral services conducted by the Reverend Frank W. Page of Culpepper, Virginia, for many years the pastor and friend of the family.

Late this afternoon the body will be taken under the escort of a squad of mounted police to the city hall. The American flag which was draped over the coffin when it was taken on Tuesday night at Liverpool will be replaced by the official mayor's flag of the city when the body is placed in state.

The body will lie in the rotunda of the city hall which is sombre with black drapings until ten o'clock Monday morning, when it will be taken to Trinity church. The face will be exposed and all who wish to see the dead mayor will be permitted to do so. Burial will be made in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

SEEK NEW VICTIMS

Examine New York City Death Certificates for Forgeries to Conceal Murders Committed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Sept. 20.—All the death certificates filed since the first of the year 1900 in number, were examined today to ascertain whether included any papers forged by "Father" Hans Schmidt to conceal the murder of other persons besides Anna Amulder.

Schmidt has confessed that he prepared the blank certificates for the purpose of accounting for the death of persons hopelessly sick or crippled when he meant to kill painlessly for their own good. He denied, however, that he had put his plan into effect or that he had any victims besides the girl.

Revolvers found in the quarters of Schmidt and of Ernest A. Muret, his distant friend, gave the detectives today additional reason to believe that the association between them was closer than they have admitted. The weapons are alike in nearly every detail and made at the same factory in Germany. The ammunition with which the weapons were loaded is the same make. Muret says he possibly has not seen Schmidt for years.

WISCONSIN ATTITUDE TOWARD FAIR WRONG

ELLIS B. USHER CRITICIZES POLICIES OF STATE BOARD.

LOCATION NOT ISSUE

Disabilities Suffered Irrespective of Site—More Money Should Be Spent for Advertising.
(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Sept. 20.—The State Fair has been followed by the usual recriminations and recriminations between some of the country members of the State Board, and some of the Milwaukeeans. The talk has been equally unseemly and of small benefit on both sides, and suggests the proverbial fish wife controversy that is never proved and seldom serves any good purpose. The secretary, Mr. Moore, seems to have been spared a hair trigger mouth, comes in, after he knows what he actual results are, and says that the receipts of the fair, notwithstanding bad weather on Milwaukee day, are greater than last year and that there will be no deficit. He also suggests that instead of bandying epithets it would be much better for everybody to get busy and try to work together for a better fair. Most of the talk about the location of the State Fair, beside the question, if I understand it, and there are some disabilities that any location will labor under that are in no sense local. It may be of some service to Wisconsin people to call attention to them.

First and foremost the state legislatures against the State Fair, and here are some of the ways it does it. It appropriates money to agricultural interests, for this year and next, as follows:

Veterinarian and Live Stock Board	$30,000.
Dairy & Food Commission	165,000.
horticultural Society	895,000.
Live Stock Breeders Ass'n.	14,000.
Wis. Dairyman's Ass'n.	6,000.
Wis. Dairymen's Ass'n.	2,000.
Wis. Cheesemaker's Ass'n.	1,200.
Wis. Cranberry Growers' Ass'n.	500.
AGL Experiment	10,000.
County AGL Societies	240,000.
County Schools of Ag.	64,000.

To this may be added the cost of the Grain and Warehouse Com., which is maintained by fees 150,000.

These figures are not exact, but they are fairly approximate, and the State Agricultural Board is not in the list.

The cost of the Agricultural College might be added to this sum, for it is spending all its time and money ostensibly in the interest of agriculture, and in some respects is contributing to the segregation of each agricultural interest in the state. These boards and associations all operate with the college, few of them with the State Fair. They hold their important meetings at Madison, not at the State Fair. Each has its own special interest fenced off and guarded by a special appropriation, and each has its little coterie of office holders who are farming for the state administration in power. This is the aggregate represents a very powerful cog in the wheel of spirit of state administration, having one great big stunning snag a year, that will really represent Wisconsin.

It may be that Wisconsin should rub its eyes and wake up, for in the face of all this wet nursing as I have recently shown, Wisconsin agriculture is languishing.

The state contributes to a big fair at La Crosse, to another at Chippewa Falls, and to a host of county fairs. In all about a quarter of a million dollars annually, and several of them are mighty good fairs.

Another disability that Wisconsin has under is the nearness of the great Minnesota State Fair, the third of this state. That fair often has more attendance in a day than our State Fair has in a week. Minnesota has always had a splendid state spirit. They make money and put it back into their fair. If Wisconsin hopes to get Northwestern Wisconsin to come to her State Fair, no matter where she located it, she has got to get some big men and big money behind her fair.

One thing Wisconsin might do with great advantage, is to advertise her fair in Wisconsin newspapers, and breed a little good will instead of sponging advertising and paying in a complimentary ticket that it will cost the newspaper $50 to use. That has never seemed to occur to the Wisconsin fair management. The Wisconsin fair ought to spend $25,000 a year on newspaper advertising and publicity. The management would then, if they were of the size for their jobs and had a good fair, build up some reputation for it. The country newspaper man doesn't really consider it a compliment to be "worked" but a lot of people seem to think he ought to eat complimentary tickets and get fat on them. He gets a basketful a week at fair time so he ought to eat fat fast. There are decent fellows or they would not get some swear words on a lot of the complimentary tickets they get and send them back. It would, sometimes be a real service to the state if they would do this.

It has been a rather painful surprise to me to find out that Professor Moore of the Agricultural College seems to be a part of the "bunch" factory that is giving our state so much ridiculous advertising but I was forced to realize it. For example, read in World's Work last winter, an article by Frank Parker Stockbridge, of that magazine, that had the following enthusiastic caption:

THE BARLEY THAT ENCOMPASSED THE EARTH

How Forty Grains of Educated Seed Made $12,000,000 For Wisconsin and are Carrying the Profits Around the World.

Whoop! Well I found that Mr. Stockbridge had visited Professor Moore and caught him in June 1912 in the very act of taking an order on the telephone for 20,000 bushels of Wisconsin Pedigree barley to go to Japan. Then I read that the average acreage in barley in Wisconsin has been 744,900 for the last five years. The average yield has been about thirty bushels to the acre. The average yield of the Wisconsin Pedigree Barley is thirty-six and one-half bushels to the acre. This means a difference of more than 18,000,000 bushels in Wisconsin alone, and at the average price of sixty-six cents a bushel, a gain of $12,000,000 for the farmers of one state on the acreage.

That was good reading and as a loyal Wisconsin man, I swelled up and got "chesty" over our new achievement of seeding down that little

Japanese island, for if you know anything about sowing seed you know that that would seed about a township, and make a big chunk of Japan. Let, this sort of came over me, and when the Census Bureau began to come in I took a short course in agriculture. There was my humiliation to find that in 1909, the entire barley acreage in Wisconsin was set down at $1,449,000, 485 acres more than Mr. Stockbridge reckons, and the whole crop was valued at only $12,682,136. June was early to reckon on any crop later than that of 1911, which was only two years later than the Census of Professor Moore had certainly done wonders in two short years. If we don't look out Wisconsin will be a worldwide joke. Mr. Stockbridge's article has the usual university professor ear marks—"Wisconsin is a German state," "Wisconsin is furnishing the farmers of the world with farm seed," pictures of the university farms etc.

In April last a United States Consular report suggested that we are encouraging a competition with our (impending) a graduate of an American agricultural college is teaching Indian corn culture to the farmers of Bessarabia, Russia. He has organized 7 peasant clubs, and 120 boys' clubs, with a total membership of 1,500 and only he is breeding "select" Indian corn. That program has a familiar sound, and it points to the end of a bushel seed corn in Wisconsin, so far as the Russian market goes. Import and Export Service.

The difference in the way things are done by wide awake corporations now, and twenty-five years ago, is illustrated in the work that the Erie Railroad Company employs me to do here in Wisconsin. It is recognized that with Mr. Underwood, and several other Wisconsin men at the helm or that road, the people here will not only be interested in knowing what they are about, but that it will pay the road to have Wisconsin business men know that these men in the East are trying to accommodate them and give their shipments all of the best possible advantages. The Erie's facilities are especially good for export and import trade. Mr. H. D. Pheasant of this city (the Erie's Wisconsin General Agent) is the only general freight agent here who can handle business for foreign lands, without asking for special instructions. He has large discretion in such matters, and it is useful to Wisconsin shippers to have the aid and advice of such a man.

There seem to be some Democrats who forget that E. C. Wall has a position on the National Committee, as appointed by Mr. McAdoo, the Treasurer of the Finance Committee that used the National Committee that year's last year. He is still a member of that committee. That's a job that he has been familiar with for a good many years.

I am in danger of getting into the expert class. A Madison man writes me—"How about Assemblyman Estabrook and C. D. Hood and Senator George Thibault, who were omitted in my letter of the 6th telling how many Civil War veterans there were in the last legislature. They were there and I know it, but in a too hasty paragraph I made an error."

Nobody seems to have realized that Mr. La Follette's vote on the tariff bill was unnecessary, either to its success or defeat.

BRODHEAD

Brodhead, Sept. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gammon were passengers to Janesville Friday to attend the funeral of his father, who died in Milwaukee, but whose remains were taken to Janesville for interment.

Saint Phil of Albany, was in Brodhead on Friday. John Hegge went to Hanover Friday to visit relatives.

G. Goul left Friday on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Frankbridge and family at London, Illinois.

John Egner was a passenger to Plymouth Friday.

Miss May Bowen went to Madison Friday to consult an eye specialist. Mrs. Chas. Richter and children of Janesville, came to Brodhead Friday and are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Roderick.

G. W. Roderick was a visitor in Monroe on Friday. An all night rain with the wind in the northeast took place in this vicinity last night and will retard very much the harvesting of late tobacco. There remains yet in the fields about three-fourths of the crop raised hereabouts. Ten days to two weeks of warm weather is needed to secure the crop.

At the meeting of the M. E. ladies society, held at the home of Mrs. Sidney Starnes on Friday afternoon, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. T. A. Kungman; vice-president, Mrs. W. L. Gehr; secretary, Mrs. C. W. Murphy; treasurer, Mrs. Lodon Blackburne. Plans for holding a fair in December were discussed.

SAYS GEN. CUSTER DIED IN HIS ARMS

Ben McIntosh ("Curley the Crow").

Ben McIntosh, or "Curley the Crow," the only government survivor of the Custer Massacre, is now in Washington on a mission to the great white father. He says General Custer died in his arms. "Curley" is a wealthy Indian. He owns 320 acres of fine farm land near Butte, Mont., and has valuable stock, as well as large crops.

MAKING A MAN.
Many a man "makes" himself; still more are made. Not all are endowed by nature with the initiative, the push which sends a man to the top. Most of us have to get the shove from outside.

There are official shovels. Of such are the teachers of youth, the preachers who address themselves mainly to adults, the writers who try to inculcate the lessons of thrift, study and effort. But of all the factors in the advancement of a man his womanhood are the greatest.

Hats off, then, to the ambitious man's wife! In nine cases in ten his success may be traced back to her. Or it may be his mother to whom the praise is due. In either case the principle is the same.

The French say "Cherchez la femme," which means "Look for the woman," when they want to fix the blame for a man's misdeeds. Let us, with more charitableness, use the same words with a woful implication and seek the woman when we desire to apportion praise for a man's achievements.

Kipling wrote: "Down to Gehenna or up to the throne, He travels the fastest who travels alone. But not all of us agree with Kipling's rugged philosophy. We would rather behold man and woman going hand in hand up the mountain of success.

Let us think of Andrew Johnson, later president of the United States, taught to read by his wife. Let us think of his immortal predecessor, Lincoln, who said, "All that I am, all that I hope to be, I owe to my angel mother."

We hear much nowadays of women leaving the home to take care of itself while they make careers for themselves. The fear for the future of the home is largely imaginary. Women who are wise know that they can serve their own interests best by standing staunchly behind their husbands, encouraging them in the hour of trial and despondency, sharing with gladness in the success when won.

Behind the two and enveloping them is the home, the greatest of human institutions.

GINK AND DINK. SOME VARIOUS IDEAS OF SPEED

SPORT Snap-Shots

"Pop" Warner is getting his Carlsbrave into shape for another season of battling on the gridiron and many redskin aspirants are out on the field falling on the ball and practicing punts. It is expected that they will have as good an outfit this season as last, there being some fifty to be little doubt that Plank has done the most of his effective work as a pitcher.

George Stallings has slipped over one in managing the Boston Nationals that has seldom, if ever, been done before. He has strengthened and increased the efficiency of the club and at the same time reduced the salary expense by thousands. This, of course, is quite against the rule, as most managers expect to spend money hand over fist if they are to build up a winning crew. In Stallings' case it seems otherwise. The pay roll for 1914 will be about $10,000 less than that of 1913 and $5,000 less than the 1913 payroll. The disposal of Arthur Devlin, Kling, Dridwell, Pitcher Brown and Jay Kirke accounts for it. All of these men, particularly the first mentioned, drew pretty fat wages. The salary of most any one of them would pay two promising youngsters. In the case of most of the men let out by Boston this has been true and by signing last youngsters the club is being strengthened and the expenses cut appreciably.

Heretofore in winning the rag the Giants have always had the matter settled and the pennant cinched earlier in the season. This year in putting it away on ice, as a glance at the following dope will show. In 1904, when they won their first rag, the game that settled it was played on September 22 against the Cincinnati Reds, and McGinnity twirled the victory. In 1905 it was later, September 27, at Pittsburgh, that they won the game that brought them the bunting and George Witte had the honor of putting that one over. The next year they won 1911 they had to wait till October 4 before they could be sure of it. Matty was pitching when this game was won from Brooklyn. Last year Demaree pitched the clincher and won from Boston on September 23.

NEXT OLYMPIC MEET AROUSING INTEREST WITHOUT PRECEDENT

Games, Preliminaries and Preparations Subjects of International Comment and Discussion.

New York, Sept. 21.—Although three years will elapse before the sixth revival of the Olympic Games to be held at Berlin during the summer of 1916, the meet, has already assumed proportions far surpassing any previous struggle for world's amateur track and field championships. The games, their preliminaries and preparations are topics of national and international comment and discussion throughout the old and new world. In the midst of all these preparations the United States athletic authorities continue to lead the way American prospects for the 1916 Olympic Games are brighter than at any time since the revival of the new "International Athletic Federation" just organized at Berlin by delegates from sixteen leading athletic countries of the world.

As a controlling international authority for amateur track and field sports its suggestions to the Olympic Games Committee will carry great weight. The proposed I. A. F. standard program of track and field events is made up almost entirely of events on the programs of American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American athletes are accustomed. The victory of the American views at the congress German sport critics ascribe to the fact that the events proposed by the United States are practiced everywhere and are devoid of freakishness; the superiority of the results produced under the American rules and in no small measure to the ability of the American delegates and the prestige of American athletes.

It was the consensus of opinion among the delegates that the American representatives of the Amateur Athletic Union were by far the best athletes in the theory and technique of the sport. When they advocated changes in the rules they advanced excellent reasons in support of their contention and won many victories and supporters to their ideas. Some of the new rules advanced at the suggestion of the United States delegates were: Toe-board circles for the shot-put; penalties for false starts, and a rule to prevent the drawing of one's feet out from under the runner. On a few points American ideas were rejected, as, for instance in adopting a 16-pound shot made of iron instead of the smaller American lead shot, and of sporting track a two-foot take-off for the broad jump, against the United States argument that the take-off joist sunk flush with the ground was far safer.

Olympic Controversy Prominent.

While the International Athletic Federation was busy settling its wrinkles in the program to be offered as a model for the Berlin games, the Olympic controversy that has held the attention of English athletic followers since the Stockholm meeting of a year ago attained fresh prominence. The proposal to raise a fund of $500,000 rather staggered the average subject of George V. Although there were few early subscribers to the fund there were hundreds of inquiries as to what was to be done with this enormous sum of money.

The Duke of Westminster in a public letter calls attention to the long list of sporting trophies and championships which England lost during the past fifteen years. He wrote:

"Polo, America; racquets, America; sailing, America; lawn tennis, England; New Zealand, tennis (Davis cup), America; court tennis (Davis cup), America; boxing, America-France; billiard (English), Australia; swimming, America-Australia; football, England; soccer, Africa-New Zealand; lacrosse, Canada; cycling, France-Germany; trotting, England; America; running horse, America; horse jumping, France-Russia; fencing, France; shooting (King's prize), Canada; skating, Sweden; track and field athletics, America."

"This is a tale of national disaster. Is England to do nothing to recover her ancient supremacy as the mother of sport? The King is both a man of business and a sportsman. As Prince of Wales on a memorable occasion, his momentous 'Wake up England' electrified an empire and gave an immense stimulus to commerce and industry. As our Sovereign he is bidding Britain to 'wake up' in sport and hopes that every effort will be made to ensure that the United Kingdom is represented by its best athletes at the Olympic Games on Berlin in 1916. We are in honor bound to go to Berlin and do our level best to restore the lost prestige of a great sporting nation. But victory means efficient organization and training, and both cost money."

"I confidently appeal to my fellow sportsmen to help me in getting the $500,000, for which a national appeal was made by Lord Grey, Lord Harris, Lord Rothschild, Lord Roberts, Lord Starthorne, and myself as quickly as possible."

Champions Are Surprised.

A surprise which was not part of the official reception was sprung on the California tennis players when they returned to their native state recently. Evidently several ambitious youngsters had been practicing with the racket all summer and the home owners received a distant shock in the California State Championship tournament. In the doubles Maurice B. McLaughlin paired with Wickham Havens, was defeated in three straight sets by B. H. Botkin and C. E. Foley. Clarence J. Griffin, winner of the western singles championship was eliminated by Norman Ambrose, an unranked player, in two sets. Another upset came when Griffin and John R. Strachan, who played at Newport at Newport for the United States doubles title, were defeated by W. E. Johnston and E. Fottrell in three straight sets.

Expert English Challenge. The impression is growing in national polo circles that a challenge for the Polo Cup will be received from the Harrington Club of England before the time limit expires on January 1. Lord Ashby, who is in charge of the latest project to recover the trophy and has tentatively selected six players and a string of ponies. If the challenge conforms to the cup playing rules which him to accept according to a prominent official of the American Polo Association. With competitions scheduled for the American Davis and Polo cups, 1914 would appear to be securing a flying start in international sport fixtures.

WISCONSIN PLAYERS DRAFTED BY MAJOR LEAGUE OFFICIALS

Three From Wisconsin-Illinois League Accepted During First Day—Seek New Material.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 20.—Three Wisconsin-Illinois League players were drafted by major league officials during the first day of drafting and the club officials predict that a few more may be picked by the clubs of major or lower class leagues by the time the drafting terminates. The candidates for places in the major league are Fred Mottwitz, Green Bay's first baseman, Graham, Appleton's pitcher, and Jacks, Fond du Lac's pitcher. The Cubs drew Mottwitz and President Charles W. Murphy has wired to Green Bay for his address so as to ask him to report to Chicago.

While the season in the W. I. circuit ends in two weeks, the players of the clubs are out in search of new material for the 1914 campaign. The Green Bay Club has signed two pitchers, Henry Nesen, who is high grade country in preliminary tests of races, and a left-handed pitcher, Graham, this summer and Henry C. Perry, a Forestville youth who has made a good record as an amateur. Manager Fred W. Lynch is determined to strengthen his pitching staff this year as he was never free from worry this season about pitchers.

Madison supporters and officials are cheering with success in their efforts to provide a two-day ball game in the treasury to begin next season with.

CARDS HAVE STRONG NINE FOR FOOTVILLE

Janesville Fans Hope Tillie and Butters Will Be Picked to do Hurting Duties.

The Janesville fans will see several new faces on the Cardinal lineup tomorrow afternoon when the local team crosses bats with the Footville White Sox tomorrow afternoon at the Driving Park. The strongest infield of the season will be on the diamond for the Cards and every corner is filled to perfection. Ed Lenehag, second baseman for the Racine Wisconsin-Illinois league team promises to hold down the keystone sack and with Porter, Hell and Ryan on the other sacks and shortstop, the inner works promise to take care of the share of ambitious sluggers from Footville.

Butters should be in fine trim for the mound work and the Footville bunch have great respect for his bunting and smoke balls. Should 'Cud' fail to deliver Captain Hell has secured the services of a league hurrier to oppose the White Sox. It is hoped that Tillie will be trotted out for the Sox as the Cards are anxious to break his winning streak.

One of the largest crowds of the year is expected as the local fans know the reputation of the Footville team and would like to see Tillie who has been the sensational in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois, during the season in action. The last time he twirled against the Cards he had an easy time downing them with the great support of the Belvidere team, but Captain Hell's men are out to reverse matters on Sunday.

The Cards lineup will be as follows: Hall, c; Butters, p; Porter, 1b; Lenehag, 2b; Hell, ss; Ryan, 3b; Berger, Sullivan and Nehr, fielders.

Dog Show at Philadelphia. Philadelphia, Sept. 20.—An unusually large number of fine dogs were shown today at the county fair grounds, at Byberry, where the annual bench show under the auspices of the Kennel Club of Philadelphia was held today. Society turned out in full force to see the fine display.

Safest Laxative for Women

Nearly every woman needs a good laxative. Dr. King's New Life Pills are good because they are prompt, safe, and do not cause pain. Mrs. M. C. Dunham of Lehigh, Tenn., says: "Dr. King's New Life Pills helped her troubles greatly. Get a box today. Price, 25c. Recommended by People's Drug Co."

PENNSY FOOTBALL TEAM SWING INTO HARD TRAINING. Strenuous football practice is the order of the day at the University of Pennsylvania just now, just as it is at other colleges. In the scrimmages during the past week a number of new men have done such good work that the coaches have expressed themselves as pleased with prospects for the coming season. The accompanying picture shows Schweigler of the U. of P. team tackling a flying dummy.

SIX CYLINDER PENN WINS ELKHORN RACE

Peter Emmett Takes Fourth in 2:23 Pace—Pay Day and J. C. N. Fail to Show Form.

Six Cylinder Penn, Huguenin's fast trotter, took first money in the 2:13 class trot at the Elkhorn fair races yesterday. Peter Emmett, who was winner of first money in Thursday's race, took fourth place in the 2:23 pace. J. C. N., owned by John C. Nichols of this city, took fifth place in the same event with one third and six sixths, while Pay Day, owned by Dr. W. A. Mann, failed to show form and came in seventh.

In the 2:17 pace which went to Dorothy K., after five heats, Mark Haine, the Edgerton favorite, was withdrawn after the first two heats in which he broke on the stretch. A large number of Janesville people went over to the fair by auto yesterday to witness the races.

The Age of the Microbe. People just now are living in a state of almost morbid apprehension concerning what they should eat and drink. There have been the palaeolithic age and the red sandstone age. The present age would come to be known as the bacillus, microbe and tubercle age.—Ribblesdale in the House of Lords.

FT. ATKINSON CAMP IS HOST AT PICNIC

Four Janesville Comrades Enjoy Festivities at Fountain House on Friday.

Members of the Fort Atkinson camp of United Spanish War Veterans entertained at their annual picnic at the Fountain House on Rock river, near the inlet to Lake Koshkonong on Friday. Guests were present from neighboring camps including Jefferson, Watertown, Janesville, Madison and Racine. The Janesville men present were Carl Buchholz, Jesse Dixon, Albert Nott, and C. L. Miller. An elaborate dinner was served after which a most exciting game of baseball was a feature of the entertainment. Chief Baker and Capt. Lewis of Racine were stars on the diamond.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
There was something to do.
So I went to the man
Who had time and enough
To do it.
And I said to him, "You
Can help with my plan—
It's right up to snuff—
Go to it."

But he said to me, "Oh,
I have burdens of care,
So many they make
Me dizzy.
I'd help you, you know,
But I simply can't spare
The time it will take—
I'm busy."

Then I went to the chap
Who rushed with his job,
And who labored in glee
Amid it.
And he said to me, "Cap,
I'm as busy as Bob,
But—leave it to me!
HE did it!"

And the moral is plain:
When you want a thing done
And some one to snap
Right to it,
You'll bother in vain
With the leisurely one—
Get the busiest chap
To do it!
—Berton Braley.

The sentiment expressed in this little poem is as true to life as anything that was ever written. The busiest people always find time for new plans, and they are always in demand. This is true of the home, of the church, and of every avenue where men and women toil.

The mother, heavily laden with care and weary with the monotony of her shut-in environments, opens her heart to welcome the little stranger who comes into the home already crowded, and while work and care increases, no word of complaint is offered.

She is busy from early morn until late at night, yet always finds time to serve the church, which next to her home she prizes, and every pastor recognizes her worth. She may not be a shining light in society, but she is a "Dorcas" in the community where her lot is cast.

This class of women seldom live in flats, because the little brood of children which grace the home are objectionable. But few of them are suffragettes, because they are too busy to discover that they are down-trodden and oppressed. They are not very much in the public eye because they represent the great rank and file known as the common people, described by the late President Lincoln as God's special favorites, because He made so many of them.

It is a little old truism that says: "Man may work from sun to sun. But woman's work is never done." And because it is so true many women in this and every other land, work on through the years, with no time limit to the hours of service, and with but little reward by way of appreciation.

While regulative laws, which have been passed in Wisconsin and several other states may lighten the burden for women who toil as wage earners, they in no way relieve the great army of home-keepers whose work is "never done."

There is also a comparatively small class of men whose work is never done. They represent the merchants and small manufacturers, found in every community, who occupy the middle ground between the large corporations, and organized labor, both attracting much attention at the present time.

These men are the bone and sinew of business and community life. They are always busy, but never too busy to take a lively interest in the welfare of home surroundings, and the struggle that many of them make for existence is seldom appreciated.

They include the much advertised class of "middle men," just now held responsible by some people for the high cost of living, but without their grass would grow in the streets of our towns and villages, and we should be obliged to die on scheduled time to receive a decent burial by the mail order houses.

There are two classes of people who travel the two great thoroughfares which span the journey of life, and they include all of us, unless one belongs to the idle list or tramp fraternity both too lax to work.

The course of Adam and Eve when they were turned out of the garden of Eden has proved to succeeding generations a blessing in disguise, and today the sweat of brow and brain is the hall-mark of genuineness, referred to with pride.

The good Lord who permitted us to be created, intended that we should work, and every soul which comes into normal existence is fired with ambition to take up the task at the earliest possible moment.

The average boy leaves school long before the course is completed, because he wants to be doing something for himself, and his sister is troubled with the same spirit of restlessness.

The two great thoroughfares referred to stretch out before them like an enchanting panorama, but their sense of vision is not keen enough to discover that while one of them is crowded with struggling humanity, the other is not congested.

The crowded highway is filled with routine workers, performing faithfully the tasks assigned them, careful to commence work on time and just as careful to quit when the time limit expires.

Many of these toilers in the industrial field are governed by organization rules which are religiously observed and regarded as more vital than personal or public welfare, while the great mass of unorganized workers adopt practically the same schedule.

The hired man on the farm no longer milks the cows and helps about the chores. He was hired to till the soil and not to be a milkmaid. So when the day's work is done he nitches up his own horse and drives to town. He is a routine worker, but will never be a landlubber.

The little army of clerks which stand behind the counter belong to the same class. They handle one priced goods, and the ability to offer bargain prices no longer stimulates ambition. The goods sell themselves, by the aid of a pleasant smile and courteous treatment, but when a vacancy occurs half a dozen applicants are waiting to fill it, because the work is routine.

These conditions prevail to large extent through all the avenues of commercial life. The most of us work under directions, performing faithfully the tasks assigned, but careful not to exceed the limit, and so it happens that the routine avenue is always crowded.

Running parallel to this congested thoroughfare is another highway where there is always room. It is the roadway of possibilities and great opportunities, occupied by men and women who create things and cause two blades of grass to grow where one grew before.

Knowledge of any kind amounts to nothing unless it is applied. The creative channel engages workers who study to apply knowledge and to enlarge the scope of opportunity in the channel where they work.

The factory amounts to nothing unless the product can be sold at a profit, and railroads will cease to do business when creative genius fails to supply the sinews.

Each boy and girl who stands at the threshold of active life, is confronted with the problem of a chain which may result in success or failure. They may enter the broad thoroughfare without effort, and become routine workers, or they may strive for a foothold in the creative field where opportunities abound, and where men and women are always busy, but never too busy to take on more work.

"And the word is plain,
When you want a thing done
And some one to snap right to it,
You'll bother in vain
With the leisurely one—
Get the busiest chap to do it."

THE LA FOLLETTE VOTE.
Proper Gratitude.
Democrats are lauding Senator La Follette for his vote on the tariff bill. Why not? didn't he help pull the chestnuts out of the fire and save them burning their fingers?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Discharged Debt.
Anyway, Senator La Follette has discharged his debt due the democrats in Wisconsin for their aid in his political advancement by his vote on the tariff bill.—Edgerton Reporter.

Democratic View.
La Follette would have been condemned by a certain class whether he had voted for or against the new tariff measure. In the former case he would have been branded as a hypocrite and not a progressive in fact; now that he voted as he believes a majority of his constituents demand and as he is convinced the best interests of the nation require, he is branded as the nation's traitor.—Jefferson County Democrat.

Constituents Disagree.
The vote of Senator La Follette on the tariff bill has caused much comment and severe criticism. It is claimed by his enemies that his vote forever puts him out of the Republican party. Of course a senator is elected to vote his convictions, and look after the interests of his constituents. La Follette is independent enough to vote his convictions and disregard the effect on his party standing.—Whitewater Gazette.

A Trifling.
He simply compared the tariff bill with the Aldrich law and voted his conviction.—La Crosse Tribune.

O. J. Thiers, when he formerly voted against the Aldrich tariff he "simply compared it with" the Dingley law and stood pat on Dingley.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Not necessarily. Sometime there must be choice between two evils. If the lesser evil is chosen it does not follow that the chooser must stand pat on it. It is better to be fair in the interpretation of such matters.—Superior Telegram.

THE MODERN ALONZO AND IMOGENE.

A warrior bold and a maiden so bright,
Conferred as they sat on the green;
They gazed on each other with tender delight.
Alonzo, the Brave, was the name of the knight,
The maiden's the Fair Imogene.

"What wouldst thou for thy birthday,"
Was Alonzo's request
Caressing the maiden's soft hand,
"Whatever thou wishest and will suit thee best."
"Thou shalt have though I cover the world in my quest;
"There is nothing too good, understand."

"I really don't want much," said Fair Imogene,
"But somehow I cannot but feel,
"That if thou dost really say just what thou meanest,
"The gift that would suit me the best,
"Is a limousine automobile."

Alas, oh, alas, for Alonzo the Brave,
In pain he fled from the scene,
His much vaunted courage deserted the knave,
She nevermore saw him this side of the grave.
Alas for the Fair Imogene.

Signs of the Times.
Mary used to be a puzzle.
No one could quite do her out;
And she surely was a prodigious bear.
With her smile and her pout.

But she's up-to-date, is Mary.
And to dress in style knows how;
She wears the new gauge clothing,
They can see through Mary now.

Doubtless there are some who would like to see a time clock installed in the state department so that Secretary Bryan would have to punch it morning and night.

When it comes to choosing between water and grape juice the southern colonels in Washington compromise by drinking nothing at all.

There may be some small children alive now who will live to see Sir Thomas Linton come across with Shamrock XVII.

Kaiser Wilhelm says he saves $1,000 a year by drinking beer.
Some thirst that the kaiser used to have evidently.

Ambassador Wilson has not yet suggested that the United States accept 45-cent Mexican dollars at 100.

The United States army is short 1,000 horses and in the matter of horses it is impossible to borrow from the navy.

Signs That Never Fail.
If you shove in a stack of blues on two sevens it is a sure sign that some dufer is going to call you and win out of a pair of eights.
If you smash a looking glass it is a sure sign that it is going to cost you about $4 to buy a new one.
If you have any business relations with a shyster lawyer it is a sure sign that he is going to try to sting you if he can.
If you own an automobile it is a sure sign that gasoline is going to be higher.
If you look at the new moon over your right shoulder it is a sure sign that your wife is going to call you down for saying out so late to look at it.

A Waste of Time.
I do not wish for riches, and
I do not care for power;
Nor to live over once again
A single bygone hour.

I don't wish to be president,
Or legal potentate;
I do not ask to dine in style
With gold or silver plate.

I don't even yearn to be
The greatest of my time;
I do not care to travel in
The European climate.

I don't desire those things at all
And I've a good excuse;
I might wish my whole life, but
There isn't any use.

Mary's Gown.
Mary has an X-ray gown.
In latest style 'tis made,
But if she has a grain of sense,
She'll stand right in the shade.

Village Life.
In a small town if a man stays up until 11 o'clock at night he is generally considered a sport.—Topeka Daily Capital.

FEDERAL PRISONER

DETAINED AT JAIL;

KIDNAPPING CHARGE

Harry Edward Chapman, Arrested at Beloit Thursday, Fighting for Possession of Adopted Daughter.

Emigrating to this country under the false name of Harry Smith in order that he might evade the pursuit by his wife, and retain unimpaired possession of his little three-year-old adopted daughter, Madeline, Harry Edward Chapman of Saskatoon, Canada, failed to evade the vigilance of the United States immigration authorities whose aid was sought by the Canadian police, and late Wednesday afternoon he was placed under arrest in Beloit by Officer Frank L. J. G. Boor.

Yesterday afternoon he was brought to the county jail to await the decision of the United States government as to whether he is lawfully in this country. He is held on a warrant charging unlawful entry. Kidnaping is the charge held against him in Canada. Chapman has engaged the services of Attorneys Woolsey and Arnold of Beloit who presented his case to Officer Boor and has forwarded the evidence submitted to Washington, D. C., for a final decision. It is not known whether or not he can obtain bail and hopes for a decision in his case by next Monday.

The story of Chapman reveals a complicated situation. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman adopted a little girl, Madeline, from the Winnipeg orphan's home when she was an infant. Their home life was happy until a boarder received into the home alienated his wife's affections and she left him. The mental anguish and confusion that followed Chapman relinquished the adoption papers of the child to the orphan's home though not giving up her possession. Later he was informed that the child was no longer his own and that he would have to give her up to a couple who wished to adopt her.

To avoid losing her he turned the child over to some friends entering the United States and they conveyed her across the Canadian line. He followed on a later train and joined her. They came to Beloit to visit at the home of R. C. G. Boor, 307 Park avenue, before leaving for London, England, where he intended to give the child to the custody of his mother. She is being cared for by a family in Beloit.

When interviewed this morning Chapman was in a cheerful frame of mind and was hopeful that he would be allowed to remain in this country. He retained possession of his child. The United States immigration commissioner declared that he was not trustworthy and would make no attempt to escape. Instead of being lodged in a cell he is given his freedom of the city. This morning he had mailed to his mother-in-law in England clippings from a Beloit paper giving an account of the difficulties into which he had fallen and a picture of the little girl. He has taken his part in the trouble that broke up his home. Chapman is an Englishman by birth, thirty-five years of age, and a power-hammer by trade. He has also worked as a baker.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George Hanthorn, wife of George Hanthorn, passed away at her home, 307 Fremont street early this morning after suffering from pleural pneumonia for the past four days.

Mrs. Hanthorn was born in Scotland, Ramsay county, New York, April 14, 1843, coming to Wisconsin when two years old, and has resided here since then. She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband, two sons, Oscar V. and Orlando, employed at the Janesville postoffice, and six grandchildren. Three sisters and one brother also survive Mrs. Hanthorn.

Funeral services will be held at the home on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. O. Neil of Oak Grove Congregational church officiating. Interment will be made in the Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Ida Jaekle, residing at 1515 Mineral Point avenue, passed away last evening after a two months' illness, heart trouble being the cause of her death.

Mrs. Jaekle was born in Germany on February 1, 1853, and in 1888 came to this country with her husband and settled in Janesville where she has since resided. Her husband died ten years ago. Mrs. Jaekle is survived by three sons and five daughters: Hans G. William and Benjamin, all of Janesville; Mrs. Oscar Bailey, of Spokane, Washington; Mrs. Freda Lindley, Elsie, Elizabeth, and Meta, of Janesville; also four grandchildren.

Funeral services have not been announced here as they were expected to hear from Mrs. Bailey of Spokane.

George Noble, aged 88 years, passed away at his home in this city during the last year coming here from Mineral Point. Brief services were held by the Rev. Frank Van Voorhis at the home of Mrs. G. W. Allen this morning and the remains were taken to Mineral Point where services will be conducted at a later date. Interment will be made in the Mineral Point cemetery.

Three daughters and one son survive the deceased, Mrs. G. W. Allen, of Janesville; Mrs. Baxter of Calumet; Mrs. G. W. Allen, of Mineral Point; and Walter Noble, of Mineral Point. Those who served as pall bearers at Janesville were: John Lloyd, W. W. Heizer, Charles Curtis, William and Neil McKee and Herbert Griffey.

Emil Roethe.

SHOOTS DOWN WIFE

WHO LEFT HIS HOME

PENDING A DIVORCE

John Walther of Jefferson held in Walworth County for Murder of Wife at Whitewater Friday Night.

John Walther of Jefferson, Wis., is held in the Walworth county jail today on the charge of murdering his wife, Louise Walther, aged about 35 years, whom he shot and instantly killed about seven o'clock last evening at the home of his brother, Andrew Hoffman, who lives on a farm on the outskirts of Whitewater.

Walther made his escape after committing the crime but was captured between eight and nine o'clock at the village of Marshall, near the Prince Point bridge about five miles from Whitewater, by Frank Bishop, Whitewater city marshal, and Night-watchman George Gill who set out in pursuit of the fugitive in an automobile as soon as they were informed of the murder.

Walther had recently had some trouble with his wife and a suit for divorce, instituted by her in the circuit court for Jefferson county, was pending. They had been living together at their home in Jefferson, where he had been employed as an engineer for a packing company for several years.

Walther went to live with his brother, a widower, at Whitewater, on Sept. 10th, awaiting the outcome of her divorce case.

Mrs. Walther had been at Jefferson on Friday looking after her household goods, an order for the removal of which she had secured from Circuit Judge Grimm. She returned to Whitewater about seven o'clock in the evening and entered into the yard of the Hoffman home where she and her husband who greeted her with the remark "You got the stuff, did you?"

Hardly allowing her a chance to answer, he drew a thirty-gauge revolver and fired three shots, the first two into her body. Their sixteen-year-old daughter who was standing in the doorway of the Hoffman residence was the only witness.

In response to questioning by District Attorney Robert C. Bulkley of Whitewater, Walther admitted that the crime was premeditated. He purchased the gun at a store in Jefferson and had planned the shooting since Thursday night. He walked to Whitewater Friday afternoon arriving at the Hoffman place between three and four o'clock and waiting until the arrival of his wife.

He fired the shots while she was still in the buggy with the revolver less than two feet from her head.

The dead woman and the man held for the crime were the parents of seven children, the oldest of whom was twenty years old and resided in Milwaukee where she was taking a commercial school course. The youngest child, four or five years old, Walther is fifty years of age or years older, is of German nationality, and was thought to be a man of medium intelligence. Since the trouble in his marriage started several years ago, he had been drinking considerably and his family troubles evidently weighed heavily upon him, according to the story he told the district attorney.

Walther was arraigned before Judge C. M. Williams at Whitewater this morning where he waived his preliminary examination and was held for trial to the circuit court for Wal. court, the jury term of which is now in session at Elkhorn. District Attorney Bulkley will request the court to take up the case at an early date.

ORFORDVILLE METHODISTS ARE PLEASED AT RETURN OF REVEREND SAINSBURY

The Rev. W. Sainsbury has been the recipient of most hearty congratulations upon his return from the conference to the Orfordville and ninth annual conference for a third year. So keen was the interest in the Rev. Sainsbury's return that a number of friends outside the regular church membership pledged themselves to an increase in the stipend. At an early date a reception will be held at the church for the new district superintendent, Dr. Perry Miller, who is in attendance. The Rev. W. Sainsbury will conduct divine worship next Sunday at Orfordville in the morning and a very cordial reception is extended to the public to attend these services.

FAIL TO FIND BURGLARS WHO ATTEMPTED TO ENTER JOHN FRANCIS APARTMENT

Local police today were unable to locate two men who attempted to enter the apartment of John Francis, South Main street, early Friday morning. The men, who were seen entering Mr. Francis' flat through a window opening on the porch on the first floor, were frightened away before they got inside. Police officers made a search but failed to locate the fugitives. The night watchman, Lewis Knitting company's factory, across the street, reports to have seen the men attempting an entrance into the building and saw them return a second time after they had been frightened away.

MATRIMONIAL.

Grandbank-Sterile.

Friends of Miss Hattie Grandbank of the town of Janesville and Miss Sterile of the town of Beloit were surprised to receive announcements of their marriage which took place at Rockford on Thursday, Sept. 11, in the presence of the parents of the bride and groom. On Saturday and Sunday last thirty-five friends gathered at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. O. Sterile, town of Beloit, for a wedding and wedding dinner. The festivities were continued until Monday afternoon. The bride has been a teacher in the rural schools of the county and the groom is a successful young farmer.

MOORE TO BE TRIED

IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Case Against Him in Circuit Court is Dismissed—Several Divorces Are Granted.

On the motion of District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie Judge of the Circuit Court George Grimm this afternoon dismissed the case against Jack Moore and he was at once re-arrested and will be tried in the municipal court. Moore who was a camp follower of Miller Brothers shows who visited this city three weeks or more ago was arrested on revolving charges made against him by two little boys. He was a banker in the large cities. Moore was in the county jail awaiting trial.

Seven divorce cases most of them from Beloit were brought up for a hearing and divorces granted in each case. The actions were those of Charles S. Bunn plaintiff of Beloit, versus Sadie Bunn defendant on the ground of desertion, Alice May Koch, plaintiff of Beloit, versus William H. Koch defendant, on the same grounds, Carol Roux of Janesville, plaintiff, versus George Roux, defendant, on the same grounds, Florence Myers plaintiff of Beloit, plaintiff, versus George Myers of the same city defendant, on the same grounds, Robert H. Hannah, versus Bessie Hannah, both of Beloit, on complaint of desertion, Mima C. Bennett versus William Bennett of Milton, on grounds of cruelty and Hattie Jerome, versus Charles Jerome, both of Beloit, on complaint of desertion.

The Inter-County Exhibit is Replete With Everything of Interest.

The big Watertown Inter-County Fair is the great attraction in Southern Wisconsin next week Sept. 23, 24, 25, 26. There have been others, but none just as good this year. The exhibits will tax the capacity of the buildings. The races will be the best seen in the state.

The free attractions this year will be the best ever seen on a fair ground.

Then there is the Pike with its abundance of concessions which this year promises to be of the very best character, all furnished with a desire to please the big crowds expected.

This fair is given for instruction and enjoyment.

ANOTHER PRISONER

MAKES HIS ESCAPE

John Ryan, Committed by Judge Maxfield on 15th of Month, Leaves Farm of George Richards.

John Ryan, or Jack Ryan, as he is commonly known, sentenced to a thirty day term under the new commitment law by Judge Maxfield on September 15, last night escaped from the farm of George Richards where he had been given work.

Information of his departure was telephoned to the sheriff by Mr. Richards early this morning. City and county authorities will keep a close watch for Ryan and if captured he will undoubtedly be punished according to the provisions of the commitment law. It provides that a penalty of $500 fine or one year in state prison for escape while under sentence. Ryan is the second prisoner given a term under the new statute to make an escape.

The first being James H. Conley of Chicago, who made his getaway from the farm of R. E. Atcheson on September 10. He has not since been seen and probably will not return to the county.

WEATHER DELAYING

TOBACCO HARVEST

From Ten to Fifteen Percent of the Crop Still Outstanding.—Buying Flurry Ceases.

Rains and unsuitable weather have delayed the harvest of the tobacco crop so that from ten to fifteen percent of the crop is still outstanding and from a week to ten days of good weather will be needed to secure it according to the Edgerton Reporter.

Reports of an occasional sale of the new crop reaches us, but since the heavy flurry in the Trempealeau valley, where a few hundred acres were contracted for, buying has ceased. At least no organized effort is apparent to continue the movement in other sections.

Samplings of last season's packings has become general and as a good deal of cleaning is found to be necessary, the sample may not reach the eastern markets for some weeks yet. Aside from a few small transactions we learn of no movement in old crop worthy of mention. Packers report plenty of inquiries for blunder goods.

The shaded tobacco seems to be curing satisfactorily; the recent rains being about the color.

The shipments out of storage reach only about 2000s to all points since last report.

While the great bulk of the tobacco crop has been safely stored the present week will hardly see all the belated fields harvested. And the time for early frosts is so close at hand that growers are using every endeavor to secure the remaining safely housed. The crop has very generally gone into the curing sheds a sounder leaf than the average season as neither worms or grasshoppers or other insects have caused much injury. Even hail, always more or less to be feared, has apparently visited smaller sections than the average of a series of years past. If favored with a favorable curing season, there is ample reason to believe Wisconsin will yield the usual crop both as to quality and quantity of leaf. The growing season of 1913 has given less anxiety to the farmer than that of most recent years while the crop has been in the fields.

CLINTON MAIN ASKED

FOR VIEWS ON BILL

To Discuss Currency.

H. A. Moehlenpach Will Appear Before United States Senate Committee to Discuss Currency.

H. A. Moehlenpach, the Clinton banker, has been invited to appear before the United States senate committee on banking and currency, for the purpose of giving his views on banking questions which the committee will consider. Only one other man from Wisconsin, A. J. Frame of Waukesha, was invited. The senate committee sent invitations to only twenty men in the entire United States and these are bankers in the large cities.

Mr. Moehlenpach will leave the last of the month for Washington. He will also attend the annual meeting of the American Bankers to be held in Boston, early in October, when delegations from all the states will be present.

BIG ATTRA

SideLights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)
Seven years ago last month the Barnum show showed in Janesville on the lot at Spring Brook and this was the last exhibition of the Barnum show in Janesville under the management of James A. Bailey. The acting manager of the show then was Frank Hyatt, one of the highest, if not the highest class manager in the business and his recommendations were twenty-eight years' service as manager of the Barnum and Bailey show.

I had known Frank Hyatt for many years and in the evening while visiting with him I said to him, "Frank, which of these acts in the show are yours?"

Every old timer in the show business, whether he be manager, canvasser or driver has what is known as his act. By this I mean one that he never tires of looking at and nine times out of ten if he is in the show he's there at the time the act comes off that he is most interested in. Mr. Hyatt smiled and said:

"By, I am manager of the show and I can look like to me." I said to him, "Hand that to somebody else, I can't use it. You have an act in the show that you are interested in and never tire of looking at."

"By, I am manager of the show and I can look like to me." I said to him, "Hand that to somebody else, I can't use it. You have an act in the show that you are interested in and never tire of looking at."

High class cow path for their high bred cattle.
This fair has advanced probably as fast if not faster than any other, and several years ago the officers knew that to give a high class show, one that would please the people, both in vaudeville acts and high class racing, could not be done with a cheap price of admission. And now Green County Fair charges fifty cents admission at the gate and fifty cents for numbered seats in the grandstand. But they give you something for your money.

Last Saturday afternoon they gave their patrons three races of $1,000 each. These were stake races. Also two class races of $400 each, so that the people saw $3,800 raced for in five races in one afternoon and these races included many high class trotters and pacers from the grand circuit and also three of the famous grand circuit drivers.

There were more than 1,000 automobiles on the grounds Saturday afternoon and the crowd was estimated at 25,000. And while I think this is somewhat overdrawn it was a wonderful crowd and while it cost you $1.00 for your admittance and the best seat in the grandstand, they gave you more than your dollar's worth.

At the close of the fair the management of the Green County Fair has to do is to keep the quality up and the gate receipts will always be satisfactory.

Confusing Voices

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them is without significance." I Cor. 14:10.

The apostle Paul was greatly annoyed by the general confusion that characterized the Corinthian church, but this text seems to have in mind a religious meeting in which some are praying, some exhorting and some teaching. He says there are so many kinds of voices, and none of them is without some particular significance.

Transferring the scene to the present day there are many voices concerning almost all subjects—social, political, commercial and religious, but we confine our thought to the last. Of the many voices on religion that might be considered, there is not one but has some significance. There is not a religious error of the day but contains some truth. There is some valuable significance in it, and from it the religious and orthodox can oftentimes learn useful lessons. Probably never in the history of the world have the voices touching religion been so confusing as now, and largely because the most dangerous of them carry some badge of adherence to the word of God and traditional religion of the best kind. There is nothing that should so concern a man as religion—his relationship to God involving his own weal or woe for eternity—and he wants to know just what the truth is.

With a goodly number the voice of reason is esteemed as safe, and as the Christian religion is a religion of rationality the voice has strong support. That the power of reasoning is highly important is conceded, or God would not ask man to reason together with Him. But reason is given a place beyond its right, and the result is most unsatisfactory, and with many there is a fanaticism and unreason, of which Paris worshipping a harlot is a suggestive result. Men trusting reason will either become thorough anarchists, or adopt some religion which is the very antithesis of rationality.

With some the voice of the inner spirit is supreme, and by introspection they are seeking to know what God is saying. This voice is so variable that no reliance can be placed on it, every man becoming a law unto himself. The most grotesque experiences are at this point engendered, and the way is open for the incoming of all kinds of religious fallacies such as Christian Science, spiritualism, occultism, and a brood of other evils.

With many the voice of the church, as such, is supreme, and when the church, considered in the light of its history, is fairly treated its voice is worthy of the highest respect. It is never wise to neglect the great historic creeds, nor the church as speaking through representative ministers, but if the church as such is depended on exclusively it becomes ultimately the voice of a single person, and we have the hundreds of millions of the human race dominated by one person. It has been found that the church, whether speaking through its popes or councils has certainly often been wrong, and it cannot therefore implicitly be depended upon.

But with some the church speaking at the last moment is to be heeded. It is contended that the church today does not believe as it once did, and that because it is more intelligent its voice is to be heeded rather than the church of two or three centuries ago, or even the church in the first centuries of the Christian era. This is evidenced by the tendency to the revision of church creeds, and the argument for such revision is that the church does not believe as it formerly believed and should change its creed. The teachings of the great divines of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, when theological thought was at its zenith, are thought to be outgrown, and that the teachings of the men of today, regardless of their loyalty to the Bible, are to be heeded.

It is claimed that the Christian teachers of the earlier centuries did not know the truth. The German distinguished apologist Lepsius makes the modern theologian say, "Christianity has for nearly two thousand years forgotten what the Master originally taught, and perhaps neither Paul, nor John, nor Augustine, nor Luther, nor Calvin ever understood who Jesus was and what He wanted. The entire church from the beginning of the apostolic age to the present generation has been one great misunderstanding and blunder."

There is another voice and that is God speaking through the Bible. By the special providence of God that book has been preserved through many centuries substantially as it was given to the holy men of old, and the reader of today can go to his English Bible with just as much confidence in its safe guidance as those who handled the original manuscripts.

AMERICANS AMAZED AT HEAVY CHARGES IN FRENCH RESORTS

Cost of Room and Bath in Deauville Goes Up to $40 a Day.—Agas Khan Interests.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Sept. 19.—Americans taking their vacations at French resorts this season have been amazed at charges which appear to be higher than anywhere else in the world. A room with bath for 35 francs ($7) a day during July at one of the frequented hotels in Deauville, rose to 200 francs ($40) a day throughout August. The ordinary charge for a single room at the resort is 100 francs ($20) a day. These are prices asked of all comers, whether Americans, Russian Grand Dukes or Frenchmen.

A Parisian Journalist made note of his experiences at Deauville. The clerk at the first hotel he entered replied to his inquiry for a room that one remained at 80 francs ($16) a day, just a room for one person, with, of course, no bath. The clerk seemed to apologize for the low price, and to lead the visitor might suppose that a room at so trivial a rate could not be of much account. "We abandon it to you at 80 francs," said he, "because it is not large, but it really is a good room." The inquirer hesitated at that and crossed the street to another establishment. The best that could be done there was a room for 120 francs ($24) a day; he returned and took the 80 franc room. A simple lunch at 15.50 ($3.10), a cab to the races after considerable bargaining, 49 francs ($9.80), and dinner at 43 francs ($8.60) completed an expensive day.

Quit Racing Game.
The refusal of several aeroplane manufacturers to enter their machines for the International Cup competition, at Rheims, indicates that aerial racing is going the way of automobile racing.

Designers aver that the over-engineered and highly costed air machines built for speed do not actually advance aviation more than machines built for automobile racing were able to do for every-day practical use. Aviation appears today to be entering upon a period in which study and experiment will be carried out in the direction of heavier, slower and safer machines. The effort will be to drive a heavier apparatus at a speed of less than a mile-a-minute or more, the velocity attained by most of the lightest aeroplanes of this season.

Agas Khan Princely Gambler.
The Aga Khan, the immensely wealthy prince of India, who among other things is head of the Moslem religion in his country, caused a sensation at Deauville. He recently by his high play at baccarat. He seemed to be quite indifferent whether he won or lost, and many people who observed him expressed "What could this man have had no knowledge at any time on this point."

It was the custom of the prince to go to the gambling rooms accompanied by a servant carrying a valise full of bank notes. The prince, from time to time during the play would either request his servant, who stood behind his chair, to remove the piles of winnings and stuff them in the valise, or else supply him with fresh bundles of 1,000-franc notes to hazard. Perceiving the servant was more observing than his master and knew whether fortune smiled or not, but to observe he was as inscrutable as the prince, and gave no sign.

The Grand Duke Boris of Russia divided the attention of onlookers with the Agas Khan's princely winning, losing 50,000 ($10,000) francs at a sitting.

President Welcomes Centenaries.
President Poincaré received four centenarians during his recent visit to the Limerous country. The eldest was 100. The youngest, 100 years old, had been the postmaster of the village of Vaulry for sixty-seven years.

The president was told, as are all visitors to the Limerous, that health and long life are the finest products of the region. Besides the four centenarians, the president was told of ten other persons who were 99 years old, and of twenty near the village of Vaulry who are in sound health, although well along in the tenth decade.

Alphonso Rebuked.
Senor Maura, the Spanish conservative leader, who has twice resigned the premiership of Spain, has a way of speaking frankly to his royal master, King Alphonso. Just now Paris is amused at two remarks made by Maura to the king in public.

When he resigned the first time the statesman said: "Kings who amuse themselves at playing with crowns frequently lose them."

On the second occasion he said: "The premier in most constitutional countries must have two things in order to govern, first the confidence of parliament, and second the confidence of the crown."

PROHIBITION URGED FOR DENMARK BY A LEADER OF LIBERALS

I. C. Christensen Starts Agitation Which May Be Successful—White Woman Weds Eskimo.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Copenhagen, Sept. 19.—I. C. Christensen, leader of the Liberal party, has started an agitation for statewide prohibition in Denmark. Not long ago the Liberal party successfully fathered a bill which forbids the sale of liquor in restaurants and similar places, and the Liberal leader evidently intends to follow this up with a law enforcing total prohibition of the sale of intoxicants in Denmark.

During the past few years the Danish people have become more and more abstemious in their habits, and as the younger generation is especially temperate, the agitation for prohibition is based on any growing insobriety on the part of the people of the country.

In explaining why the Liberal party, which stands for a large measure of personal liberty, should be backing such a bill, Mr. Christensen says alcohol is a poison and that the state should forbid and regulate its use just as it does in the case of other recognized poisons.

Until the late temperance legislation went into effect, Denmark had depended upon education to fight the evils of intemperance, and this is the first time the advocates of the prohibition movement have sought government regulation of the liquor traffic.

It is believed that the people will acquiesce in the proposed legislation in spite of the alleged attack on personal liberty, which they feel must be sacrificed for the benefit of the community. Some of the leading liberal papers have protested strongly against the bill, one pointing out that a person is not educated by making him incapable of managing his own affairs, but by letting him live his life in the largest possible liberty under the responsibility of himself and the community.

The opposition papers attack the minister's new policy, and insinuate that it is for the purpose of catching votes.

White Woman to Wed Eskimo.
By departing for Upernivik, Greenland, an Eskimo named Cernity, Miss Ellen Groth, a pretty Danish girl, will set a precedent by being the first known white woman to wed an Eskimo. On the other hand several white men have married Eskimo women, and just recently the Arctic explorer Dr. Freuchen took an Eskimo woman to wife. The Eskimo women are said to be very pretty.

On leaving for Greenland Miss Groth was given an enthusiastic farewell by her friends and on board ship her arms were filled with flowers. The Eskimo bridegroom is a local missionary.

Greeted Wrong Carnegies.
Hearing that Andrew Carnegie had telegraphed to Copenhagen from Bergen for hotel accommodations, the city became Carnegie mad and when his nephew, George Lauder Carnegie, turned up instead of the steel king, he received a reception at the railway station which caused him to flee in dismay.

From the day that the Copenhagen papers announced that the philanthropist was coming to Copenhagen, the American legation was overcrowded with people seeking introduction to the laird of Skibo. Many of them were possessed with a sincere desire to make the acquaintance of the literary donor, but most of them had schemes for aiding him in his philanthropic plans. Many women came to the American minister with most extraordinary devices which they wanted him to assist them in selling to Carnegie. One wanted him to buy what she said was a lock of Abraham Lincoln's hair, and another wanted to sell the ironmaster a portrait of John Kelly at Saratoga. People came from as far as Norway and Sweden to interest Carnegie in charitable institutions in their countries.

When the train arrived the station was crowded with newspaper men and townspeople out to greet the Napoleon of charity, but no one appeared. Some one in the crowd heard a quiet young man tell a hotel porter that had engaged rooms at the hotel in the name of Carnegie. The shout went up: "Here he is!" and before George Lauder Carnegie could gain the shelter of the hotel omnibus he was almost mobbed. Disappointed of the greater celebrity the people had to content themselves with the lesser one, during his stay in Copenhagen young Carnegie learned that being the nephew of a famous uncle entails some disadvantages.

DISCOVER MAMMOTH PRESERVED IN ICE

Finest Specimen Ever Found Presented to Natural History Museum of Parties.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Sept. 19.—Count Stenbock Fermor of the Island of Great Lyaker, New Siberia, has presented to the natural history museum in Paris what is considered to be the finest specimen of a mammoth yet found.

The gift is especially interesting because the animal had not finished digesting his last meal at the moment of his death, countless centuries ago. Thus the savants are for the first time able to study accurately the nature of the flora of the far north epoch; they have simply to examine the contents of the mammoth's stomach. He was found in an absolutely complete condition in a strata of ice. The skin, which is without a scratch, is covered with reddish hair thick and soft to the touch as that of a lap dog. The work of digging out the monster from his primeval cold storage and bringing him to Paris was one of extreme difficulty. The body was cut carefully into pieces, each one labeled, and then carried 1,800 miles to a railway line on dog sledges. The museum has come into possession of the skeleton of an enormous dinosaur found near Majunga on the west coast of Madagascar by the explorer Perrier de la Batie. Some idea of the dimensions of this monster may be gained from the fact that a strong man can barely lift one section of the vertebrae. Although only partially disinterred, the natural history experts of the museum estimate from measurements of the parts they already have that this dinosaur considerably exceeds in size the diplodocus, a plaster cast of which Mr. Carnegie gave the museum. Another acquisition is the skeleton of one of the fabulous birds known to paleontologists as apornis, which stood eighteen feet tall.

Dinner Stories

She was a little girl, and would ask questions.
"Ma," she began, "what does transatlantic mean?"
"Across the ocean," replied her long-suffering mother very shortly.
A long silence, broken only by the irritating sound of a book's leaves being turned rapidly backwards and forwards. Then—
"Ma," does 'trans' always mean across?"

"Yes, it does—always," answered the little girl's mother, and added sternly, "but if you ask me another question I shall send you straight to bed. So remember!"
The second silence was complete, and lasted quite three seconds. It was broken at last by a plaintive, small voice, which commented rudely:
"Then I suppose transparent means a cross parent."

Seven-year-old Mary was studying her Sunday school Bible lesson. For several minutes she was still as a mouse, but a pucker between her brows betokened deep thought. Finally she asked:
"Mamma, how old are babies before they can talk?"
"You began talking when you were two years old, dear."
"Don't they begin any younger than that?"
"Not very often, dear."
"When then they are very, very young?"
"No, dear, why do you ask?"
"Because it says here in my Bible 'Job cursed the day he was born.'"

SUFFERED SEVERAL YEARS RELIEVED BY PERUNA

"ONE BOTTLE DID ME MORE
GOOD THAN ALL OTHER REMEDIES PUT TOGETHER."

MR. JOHN N. WATKINS
Mr. John N. Watkins, 3431 A Crittenden St., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"Among all the greatly advertised medicines for kidney and bladder trouble there is nothing which equals Peruna. I suffered for several years with this trouble, spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicine and all to no purpose, until I took Peruna."

"One bottle did me more good than all the others put together, as they only poisoned my system. Peruna cured me. I used it for four months before a complete cure was accomplished, but am truly grateful to you. The least I can do in return is to acknowledge the merits of Peruna."

A Remarkable Recovery.
Mr. John N. Watkins, whose portrait accompanies this article, has a very interesting story to tell. He sent it to us entirely unsolicited. His statement is, "The least that I can do in return for the benefit I have received, is to acknowledge the merits of Peruna."

A great many people feel this way, and voluntarily give us the privilege of using their testimonial in spite of the fact that there are some who are prejudiced against testimonials.

Mr. Watkins' trouble was kidney, and bladder disease, as he states. Just exactly what the nature of the disease was we have no means of knowing. He had, however, what the doctors called kidney disease, and he had suffered for several years with the trouble.

Naturally enough a man of his means and energy would not sit down and whine because of his trouble, but he attempted to find relief. He spent hundreds of dollars in trying to find relief. It seems that he was disappointed entirely.

At last he was induced to take Peruna. Just who called his attention to the remedy we do not know. We presume it was a neighbor who had taken it for a similar purpose. In beginning to take Peruna he states:

"One bottle did me more good than all the other remedies put together. I continued to take Peruna for four months, at which time he claims he was completely restored to health. It was his gratitude for good health again that led him to write the testimonial and allowing to use his portrait in connection with it.

We offer no explanation as to how Peruna effected a change in his case. The operation of medicine is mostly inexplicable. The fact that he had diligently sought relief and tried other popular remedies and began to improve as soon as he took Peruna, is evidence that cannot be disputed that Peruna did for him just what he says it did.

Naturally enough, Mr. Watkins recommends Peruna to other people similarly afflicted. If any one desires to write him and obtain further particulars they should remember to enclose a stamp for reply. Otherwise their letter may receive no attention.

Catarrh of Kidneys.
Judge C. J. Park, R. F. D. 4, Greensboro, Greene Co., Ga., writes: "For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and after taking Peruna I feel like a new man."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

BOTH NEED THOUGHT

Analogy Between Matrimony and the Purchase of a Car.

ALSO IS SOME DIFFERENCE

For One Thing, If Relations Turn Out Badly It Is Easier to Dispose of the Auto Than to Sever the Matrimonial Tie.

To two men, one discussing his intended purchase of an automobile, the other talking about his forthcoming marriage, it came the other day that there is after all a great deal that is similar in the choice of a wife or a car. To be sure, once the marriage between buyer and car is settled, divorce may be had on slightly easier terms, but it is not the less important that the car and owner should be compatible in temper just as it is with the man who picks out the girl he would like to marry and proposes to her.

The man who buys an automobile should remember that he has to live with that car to this extent, that it goes with him on all his journeyings along the roads and that on its actions toward him his happiness depends. He has to be as careful of the antecedents of the automobile as he would be of those of the young woman with whom he purposes to ally himself, that is, antecedents which show the intrinsic worth of the car and its likelihood of proving itself just what he wants.

Cars like wives turn out after purchase or marriage very often not to be what the new owner thought they would be. Some cars wear well; others are not long in developing faults, serious faults, too, at times. It is hard to delve below the paint and see what the materials are. This remark about paint applies equally to some young woman just now, but in the main is figurative. There are apt to be blowout in families, just as there are with automobile tires. The most expensive exteriors are not always indicative of the finest of goods within. Automobiles although made of metals and minerals require not a little humoring on occasions and sometimes show themselves full of whims. There are few men who have the temerity to say that they understand women; few also who should say they understand automobiles. There are many men who can patch up things after a misunderstanding, but that is not to say that they know in advance how a car will turn out.

If a machine is perfectly satisfactory, it will be retained. If it turns out badly, it will be sold, that is, if a buyer can be found. In this main point there is a difference between matrimony and motoring. Although a man can find ways to rid himself of a matrimonial bargain it cannot be done in the offhand way that is characteristic of turning away a second-hand car.

Not unlike the man who has bought a car that turns out badly, the other fellow is reluctant to admit that he has had the worst of it. A motorist almost always will stand by his bargain and for a time at least will defend the make of car. Later on when he has succeeded in passing it along to some one else he is very likely to speak his mind. That is not considered unallant in the case of automobiles, whatever it might be with women. The market of used cars is very full and this is a more dangerous field than in buying a new car, the chances are. And didn't Tony Weller urge his advice to beware of widows?

MINERS HAVE FIELD DAY AT CITY OF KNOXVILLE

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Nearly twenty thousand miners from Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Virginia and West Virginia gathered here today for their annual "Field Day," under the auspices of the Tennessee Mine Foremen's Association, the United States Department of Mines and the American Red Cross Society. For the purpose of demonstrating to the assembled miners the explosive character of coal dust the government had its experimental test tube, which is used at the Pittsburgh experiment station, brought up here and set up. In addition to the demonstration there were contests between various teams of miners in rescue work, first aid etc. Many handsome prizes were awarded to the winners.

Value Up! Price Down!

THE infinite advantages and manifest economies of large, unrestricted automobile production must be clear and evident even to those who have neither experience nor conception of what governs, controls and limits a manufacturing institution. It is a certain and established fact that the largest automobile producer can readily get his manufacturing costs far below the "average" and thus undersell the "market."

Each year Overland value has increased—

Each year Overland prices have decreased—

Each year the Overland output has been enlarged—and it is the greater production that makes feasible an increased car value at a reduced price.

Our output for 1914 is 50,000 cars, which is the world's largest production on this type of car.

And every Overland value increase is just as visible, just as conspicuous and just as actual as the material reduction of our selling price. While other manufacturers refer you to more comfort, more grace, sweeter running motors and other invisible and more or less imaginary incidentals, we give you, in addition to more comfort, grace and beauty, increased value that is substantial and tangible.

Look at the newest Overland.

The wheelbase has been increased to 114 inches.

But the price is lower than ever.

The motor is more powerful. It has been increased to 35 horsepower.

But the price is lower than ever.

The tires are larger—33x4 in. Q. D.

But the price is lower than ever.

The equipment includes such costly additions as electric lights all around—head, side and tail—even under the dash.

But the price is lower than ever.

The body is designed with full cowl dash and finished in Brewster green with lighter green striping and trimmed in polished nickel and aluminum.

But the price is lower than ever.

Then there are Timken bearings; a $40 jeweled Stewart Speedometer (set so that it can be read from the driver's seat) an Electric Horn, deeper upholstery, and an 18 in. steering wheel.

But the price is lower than ever.

And so we could go on, almost indefinitely, giving new additional features—new value increases—one after the other.

You had better see this car before you buy. We will be glad to give you full details and a thorough demonstration.

A Summer Cottage—By John Henry Newson

Home of Character No. 184

Believing that many Gazette readers have determined, during their vacation, to erect a cottage of their own before next summer, the Gazette has requested Mr. John Henry Newson to furnish a design for a cottage costing approximately $1000. Concerning the design, No. 184, Mr. Newson says: "In this design the artistic possibilities of a small home or cottage are shown. The side walls are carried out in wide siding, a feature so often used in our designs because of the broad effect which changes would be desirable if the house is intended for all the year round use. This cottage, 29x24 feet, could be built for from $800 to $1200, depending on equipment and grade of materials used."

Continuing Mr. Newson says: "We have received a number of inquiries concerning the different 'Homes of Character' which have been published in The Gazette and I trust that Gazette readers fully understand that our arrangement with you is to answer all such inquiries without any charge whatsoever. Most of the inquiries which we have received from Gazette readers have been accompanied by stamps, which, while not required, we fully appreciate."

The Evening Chit-Chat

TENNIS. A CHARACTER TEST.

DID YOU ever notice how much of a man's character he will show in playing a game?

Watch any group of people at a game of skill or chance and you will find out as much about their characters as you would in half a day of that guarded, beat-forward conversation which is the ordinary intercourse between human beings.

There is the man who plays a splendid game when he finds himself on the flood tide of success but begins to lose heart and skill if the tide turns against him; and, on the other hand, there is the man who plays like fury when he is getting beaten but softens when he has begun to prosper. Can't you imagine just how these two people will act in the face of failure or prosperity in the game of life?

Then there is the man who only tries to beat his opponent; and the man who also tries to beat his own game. There is the man who begins brilliantly but never advances far; and there is the man who starts slowly and even deliberately sacrifices his first games to making experiments and learning how to do the thing just right. It takes him a longer time to come, but when he comes he comes fast.

There is the man who is unbearably grumpy if he loses, and the man who is unbearably puffed up when he wins.

And then there is the man who always has an excuse. In watching a game of tennis, did you ever notice that a game is seldom lost because its loser is admittedly inferior to the winner. With nine out of ten people it is "This racket is miserable," "I don't know what is the matter with me today," and so on.

The man who can lose a game without making a single excuse is a rare but delightful mortal.

Games are a great test of the sense of honor. There is nothing I love more than to see a player, with so true a sense of honor that when a point is doubtful he would rather concede it to his opponent than keep it himself. He is the man I would trust to the very last ditch in business.

I can still remember the thrill that went through me years ago when I read how May Sutton, one of the international tennis players, deliberately served two balls into the net when the umpire had decided a point in her favor which she felt belonged to her opponent. To my mind, the glory of that play was worth the glory of the championship.

It seems to me that if I were selecting a husband, I would like to see him play a game of tennis. If he played heartily, squarely and generously, I'd know he was a pretty safe man to marry.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. E. J. JAMESON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My hands are far from pretty. They have such large pores and are rough. I don't do any amount of work, hardly. There are girls I know of who really work, but still have pretty hands.

There are also some who want all about my wrists and arms. My hands are red, too. Please advise me.

DAILY READER.
Hands need exercise like every other part of the body, so work is not always bad for them. Stiffness you exercise them a good deal, twist them about, rub and squeeze them and massage them with cold cream. You will have to keep after your hands all the time if you want them to look well. Begin by cold-creaming them well at night, then put on a pair of thick loose clean white gloves and wear them all night, for several nights. During the day, after bathing, rub into the hands a small amount of a lotion made of ten cents' worth of glycerine, five cents' worth of witchhazel, five cents' worth of bay rum, ten cents' worth of borax, all added to a tablespoonful of flaxseed steeped in half a pint of hot water (strain before adding).

Apply witchhazel often to the hands during the day which will reduce the pores. A few drops of borax in the water used for bathing the hands will also refine the skin.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty-one years old with a good home, plenty of nice clothes, etc., and a great many things to be thankful for, but there is one thing lacking. My popularity has died out all of a sudden. I never have a date or a telephone call any more. All the fellows I used to know are married or have steady girls.

Now there is a fellow I am very interested in, but I do not know him personally. Do you think there is any harm in me smiling at him when I see him on the street (I know he comes from a respectable family) to let him know I am interested in him? He seems interested in me. I don't want to introduce him to you, but I would like to pick up with him without an introduction. I know a fellow that could introduce us, but I hate to ask him. Would you advise me to ask for an introduction?

LOVELY GIRL.
You can look pleasant without directly smiling at him. Don't let him think you are seeking his acquaintance or he will "scare off." Next time you see the man who knows him, lead the conversation around to this young man. Say that he looks like a nice sort and that you wonder you haven't met him yet. He may offer to introduce you. You might also suggest that your friend bring the young man with him next time he calls at your home.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of seventeen and have dark hair. Would a white dress and white shoes go with a black hat trimmed in light? (2)—What other color would be nice for a summer dress, besides white? (3)—The hat might be trimmed only with white, or with flowers, or might be all black, and be in good taste.

(2)—Any of the delicate tints would be pretty. Geranium red is one of the fashionable colors.

lukewarm add the yeast, dissolved in one-fourth cup of lukewarm water; measure in salt, sugar and add eight cups of the best bread flour; mix up stiff and knead as for any other bread. It should not be as stiff as white bread when kneaded. The safe way is to put in seven cups of white flour and four cups of whole wheat, and then add the remainder of whole flour if necessary. Let rise until it doubles its bulk—about two hours—then shape into loaves, handling as little as possible; let rise again, but be careful not to let it set too light that is, it should not quite double its size this time. Bake in a moderately quick oven forty-five minutes. Gradually add more whole wheat flour when the art of handling the dough has been learned.

TEMPTING HOT WEATHER DISHES.

When arranging for meals, it is wise to cook enough vegetables for two days, as it takes very little longer to prepare and cook them.

Tomatoes are so wholesome and are such well-liked vegetables that a variety of ways in serving is always welcome.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Nuts.—Scald, peel, core and scoop out the tomatoes and fill them with finely chopped pecan meats and cold cooked green peas. When ready to serve, heap a tablespoonful of mayonnaise on each and serve on lettuce leaves for a supper dish. This is a dish high in food value.

Bean Salad.—Drain a can of beans which comes with tomato sauce free from the sauce. Peel tomatoes, cut in halves, take out the seeds and fill each with beans, heaping them up. Place each half on lettuce and pour over a highly seasoned French dressing.

Banana Salad.—Slice very ripe bananas over lettuce leaves, allowing one large banana for each person. Chill and serve with French dressing at serving time.

Nova Scotia Eggs.—Prepare rounds of toast, and when well buttered, cover with codfish in a white sauce, the fish being soaked over night and shredded; then add to the white sauce. After placing the toast, put a poached egg on each and serve on a platter garnished with parsley.

Cold fruit soups are palatable to some, but fresh fruit is much easier to prepare and is always well liked. Fresh sorrel shredded with lettuce and cabbage makes a most tasty salad, served with French dressing.

PRETTY FROCK OF DULL RED TAFFETA

This pretty frock is made of dull red taffeta. The lower skirt laps slightly in the center of the front, and is stitched on each side of the center in a wide 'V' shape. It is plain in the back and fitted to the upper part of the figure with darts under the tunic. The tunic is shirred at the waist line from under a girdle of taffeta, and the girdle is tied in front in a bow, which is finished with a sash end. The sleeve which is slightly flared below the elbow, is attached to the armhole under a binding, and is pointed at the lower part and bound around the edges.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Rice boiled in milk instead of water has a much richer flavor. It must be watched closely while being cooked, as it will burn quickly.

To make velvet collars look like new, rub briskly with alcohol. This cuts all the grease and removes every article of dirt.

A good sized pearl button sewed into the corner of the dishcloth will be found a convenience when cleaning saucepans.

To soften brown sugar when it has become lumpy, stand it over a vessel filled with boiling water.

THE TABLE.

Deviled Macaroni.—Break into half-inch pieces half a package of macaroni, then boil in plenty of boiling salted water until tender, then drain, add four heaping tablespoonsful of grated cheese, two tablespoonsful of melted butter, the yolks of two eggs, a dash of salt, red pepper, curry powder and a few grains of paprika. Pour into a buttered baking dish, cover with white sauce, sprinkle over with fine bread crumbs, grated cheese and with butter. Brown in a hot oven and serve hot.

Fish Cakes.—Pass hot boiled potatoes through a ricer, or vegetable press; season with salt, pepper and paprika; add two heaping tablespoonsful of melted butter and one well beaten egg to each cupful of potatoes; mix and beat well. Shape into patties and heat well. A perforated wooden spoon is good for this purpose. Add an equal amount of cooked fish, flaked, cut into small cubes, and when thoroughly mixed heat again. Lay out on a flat surface and turn each slice in a spiral fashion while cooking. Sauté the fish cakes in the hot fat, after removing the fat to a safe place to drain, first on one side and then on the other; place a well-poached egg on the top of each cake, curls of bacon between and murely in the center. Mince Meat and Cooking.—Put into a jar the pound of seeded raisins, one pound of currants, one pound of sugar, one pound of finely chopped suet, one pound of chopped apples, one pound of candied lemon peel, one pound of candied citron, one half a pound of chopped almonds, strained juice and grated rind of three oranges, strained juice and grated rind of three lemons, two grated nutmegs, one ounce of mixed spice, one gill of sherry wine and one cupful of brandy. Mix well, cover and stir before using. It ought to be made at least one month before required. The fruit should all be cleaned carefully.

Mint Sandwiches.—Place fresh mint leaves in a wire basket or strainer, plunge into boiling water for a moment, drain, and chop fine, or pound in a mortar. Add a dash of paprika and when cold work into nice sweet butter and spread on thin slices of brown bread. Or mix the mint with cream cheese and spread on bread or crackers with whipped cream.

Grape Punch.—Two quarts of cold water, three cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of finely chopped pineapple, one cupful of cherries, two cupfuls of grape juice, one cupful of raspberry syrup, and one cupful of strained orange juice. Boil the water, sugar and pineapple for twenty minutes; add the fruit juices, cool, strain and dilute with ice water and add the cherries.

Date Sticks.—Beat the whites of four eggs as stiff as possible and two scant cupfuls of granulated sugar; then beat in slowly half a cupful of blanched and chopped almonds, and half a cupful of dates, even that he makes. Mistakes that they do not repeat.

Now, it is not my intention to advise in a wholesale fashion the going against the wishes of one's folks and family. No! To try to rise by stepping on another is to court certain defeat. To be independent with the independence that rides roughshod over one's nearest and dearest, is to be an abomination. That is putting it mildly. North or south, near or far, though we travel, in an effort to better our surroundings, there will never be any nobler duties for us to perform than the ones that lie nearest our hands, at home.

Do thy duty, that is best; leave unto Thy Lord the rest."

THE ARTISTIC AMERICAN GIRL.
Innately Appreciative of Esthetic Decoration.

It is generally conceded by everyone who visits our country that there is no possible doubt as to the high artistic temperament of our American women. They furnish abundant evidence of their correct conceptions of the beautiful in their homes, their dress and their unattained ambition for refined accomplishments. As needed woman in fancy work of all kinds the American girl has no superiors in any part of the world, and furthermore she never grows weary of her in the rear of the profession, but insists on keeping up-to-date and up-to-the-minute in all ideas and qualifications that go to adorn her person or her home. This fact has been singularly exemplified since The Gazette began its grand distribution of Gazette patterns for beautiful embroidery. Hundreds of ladies, hundreds of mothers, hundreds of housewives, hundreds of girls have practically manifested their interest in the proposition by personal application and by mail, all determined to take advantage of the unprecedented offer of our fine and artistic designs for 68 cents, and six coupons. This unusual demand on the part of women readers of The Gazette for the most stylish embroidery patterns abundantly proves that cultivated taste and artistic nature of the genuine American woman.

All in a Name.

Many a young man starting out to conquer the world considers himself an Alexander, when he is in reality but a smart Alec.—Puck.

We are told that the reason the percentage of failures is larger than the percentage of successes is that the failures do not go too soon. Might I say lack of tenacity.

Some of my readers can say in rebuttal that in Lincoln's day the need of such men as he was very apparent, that one could not do today as he did in the age in which he lived. And I would say that such men and women was never greater than it is today. Today, is your day and my day. What are we doing about it? Leaving it all to the other men and women? The men and women that are keen on the scent of any honorable work that spells advancement. Where are our possibilities, our ambitions, our desire to go forward; to win? "It's easy to write about," you say. "It's another thing to do, a difficult thing to accomplish, this going out and swinging victory out of overwhelming odds."

We are told that the reason the percentage of failures is larger than the percentage of successes is that the failures do not go too soon. Might I say lack of tenacity.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT
CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

which I have seen in various shops and markets in my travels. I read of one recently in a Southern town which appeared as an advertisement in their local paper: "Eat pure food only. The best groceries are none too good because three times a day you put them into your stomach. Poor food shortens life. You never thought of that before, did you?" We sell nothing but fresh, pure and wholesome things to eat.

Investigations proved that this man was living up to the letter of his advertisement. That store is not much like one I entered this week in a very nice neighborhood and well patronized by the counter over which customers stood and purchased everything from soap to potatoes, and that was not the worst of it for the bread was not wrapped and flies were having their feast first. And still this was not the worst. For it must have been handled several times after being baked by different people, before it reached this counter.

Why urge the baker to such cleanliness and sanitary conditions if it is to have such treatment after it leaves him? It would not take long to have wrapped bread if women would write in a neighborhood and say "we will not purchase a loaf of bread which is not wrapped." Try it and see how quickly it will come. As the dealer gives the customers what they demand, if enough people want a thing, THEY GET IT. Try it.

Again, if you are in doubt about this bread which is so important an article of food, leave it to make it. Nothing hard about it, it's just practice and nothing is a better greeting to the home-comer than the smell of bread baking. Insist upon wrapped bread and covered rolls or make them yourself.

Materials.—Water, one pint; milk, one pint; butter, one tablespoonful; compressed yeast, one cake; salt, two teaspoonfuls; brown sugar, one-half pint; white bread flour, whole wheat flour. Directions.—Scald milk and water together and add shortening. When Demand Wrapped Bread or Bake Own, Says Mrs. Kirk.

The housekeeper's individual responsibility is in her home, being sure that her home and the conditions which affect it are under her supervision and control. When a woman has proved herself capable there, then and then only, is she capable of judging food as purchased at the butcher's, baker's or grocer's. She must read labels on all canned and bottled goods and make sure that the food she purchases is pure food, instead of condemning poor food, the Westfield, Mass., board of health, with Mr. Allen, chemist, has issued a list of "Pure Foods" which any woman may receive for 10 cents. This list does not cover all pure foods, but is really a good beginning and covers almost all advertised brands of foods which have national distribution. We care little about hearing of bad foods, but we are as a class of housewives demanding information about pure food. Due to the work of these women banded together there has been a marked improvement in the sanitary conditions of our food stores and supplies.

New laws have been enacted in most of the large cities and traders everywhere are recognizing that the consumer is demanding clean shops and the sanitary handling of food supplies. Some interesting signs are displayed: "Standard Pure Food Store," "Progressive Grocer," "Sanitary Market," "Sanitary Laundry," "Sanitary Bakeshop." "We Aim to be Above Suspicion." "No Short Weight" and many others.

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

GASOLINE FIRE ENGINES MADE POOR IMPRESSION

(Fond du Lac Commonweath.) The city of Fond du Lac will not buy a motor fire engine this year, but the recommendations of Mayor Wolf carried, a motor driven combination hose and chemical wagon will be added to the fire department before the end of the year.

The mayor, delegated by the council to go to New York and witness the tests, was not impressed with motor fire engines and in a communication to the council Tuesday evening, outlined his stand in a clear and concise statement. The communication was as follows:

"When I recommended to your honorable body the purchase of a gasoline power pumping engine for our fire department, I was laboring under the impression that said apparatus was entirely dependable and that our city would be justified in the purchase of such a machine. The result of the test recently made in New York City, under the auspices of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, clearly demonstrated that such is not a fact. The final result showed that but three engines finished with a perfect record, and they are the engines manufactured by the Seagrave Company, of Ohio, the Ahrens Fox company, and the Waterous Engine Works company.

It appears to me that from a field of eleven entries, with only three completing the test, the percentage of perfect engines is altogether too small for our city to assume the risk of purchasing a machine which must do duty for many years to come. While the test conducted may be more severe than fire apparatus will be subjected to in our city, still it materially governs our actions in the matter.

MAY INSPECT THE TEETH OF PUBLIC SCHOOL CHILDREN

(Fond du Lac Reporter.) Another inspection of the teeth of the children of the public schools of the city may be made this fall if a plan which is now being discussed by local dentists is adopted at the next meeting of the Fond du Lac Dental Society to be held during the latter part of the month.

The first inspection of the teeth of the public school children was made in the spring of 1912 when local dentists visited every school in the city at the request of the board of education and made a detailed inspection of the teeth of each child. The reports on the work were sent to the parents with the recommendation of the dentists regarding the action which should be taken to improve the child's health.

The movement is one of charity on the part of the dentists for much of the work which is recommended is done by them free of charge to poor families of the city. The plan met the hearty approval of the school officials and it is probable that the local dental society will again offer to make a public inspection if it is asked by the board of education. The dentists have announced that they will pledge a certain amount of their time for the inspection.

MUNICIPALITY CAN DEMAND TUBERCULIN COW TESTING

The right of a city to demand the tuberculin testing of cows from which its milk supply comes, and to establish such other regulations as will insure that the identity of the source of the milk may be known, has been upheld by the United States supreme court in a decision sustaining the Milwaukee milk ordinance. The court upholds with the state court that the ordinance is not discriminatory; that it is a reasonable requirement; and that the court cannot question the purpose and the necessity of it. The police power of the state must be declared adequate to such a desired purpose, and the city ordinance, in the action, providing for the destruction of milk not conforming to the requirements, is not an arbitrary and unreasonable deprivation of property in a wholesome food, but a regulation having the purpose if and found to be necessary for the protection of public health.

MUNICIPAL MILK PLANT CONSIDERED AT MINNEAPOLIS

(Minneapolis News.) A $200,000 appropriation will be asked at the next session of the legislature to build a municipal milk plant. Health Commissioner Dutton, returning from the national convention of health commissioners at Colorado Springs, announced the plan today. According to Dr. Dutton's scheme four municipal pasteurization plants at an approximate cost of $30,000 each, would be erected in different parts of the city.

Every quart of milk sold in Minneapolis would have to pass through one of these plants and be officially stamped and sealed.

Dr. Dutton said the plant would insure an absolutely clean supply of milk to the city.

SUPERIOR MAKES CONTRACT WITH UNITED STATES

(Superior Telegram.) City officers this morning signed a contract whereby the City of Superior engages to take care of all sailors coming to this port who are afflicted with contagious diseases.

The contract is with the Public Health and Marine Hospital service of the federal government, which takes care of sailors who may be ill. The city hereafter will care for such cases at the isolation hospital but has received no compensation for the service. Cases other than contagious diseases are cared for at other hospitals.

BORROW FIVE TRACTORS FOR USE UPON ROADS

(Baraboo News.) Monday Highway Commissioner Post telegraphed to Moline to send five tractors to haul gravel from the pit in Excelsior to the two and one-half miles of road to be paved at the county farm. Each tractor will haul hereafter gravel for such cases at the isolation hospital but has received no compensation for the service. Cases other than contagious diseases are cared for at other hospitals.

NEW CITY GOVERNMENT INAUGURATED AT EVANSTON

Evanston, Ill.—Evanston established a precedent in city government when its council abolished the offices of chief of police, chief of the fire department and health commissioner and placed those departments under an efficiency expert, known as a manager, in charge of public safety. Walter C. Hendrick, expert efficiency manager, was selected. The heads of the three departments were reduced to deputies.

MAKING CEMENT POSTS FOR ORNAMENTAL LIGHTS

(Baraboo Republic.) The work of making the cement posts for the city lighting, to be used in the residence district, is progressing nicely. The posts are 25 feet in length and are 10 1/2 inches at the lower end and 8 1/2 at the top. They are reinforced with four steel rods, and weigh about 1,400 pounds. They are lifted from the mould with a derrick.

WILL SOON GET WATER FROM NEW CITY PLANT

In all probability the city will be using the well water from the new water plant by the first of November, according to George P. Bradish, city engineer. The work of removing the boilers from the old pumping station on King street to the new plant at North park started today. Three boilers are to be removed, each weighing eighteen and one-half tons.—La Crosse Tribune.

Increase Teachers' Salaries. The school commission of Trenton, N. J., has increased the salaries of teachers so that city and hereafter the minimum salary will be $600, an increase of $150 over the old rate.

PORTER

Porter, Sept. 19.—Misses Mary Theley, Margaret Ford and John Ford departed for Neosho on Thursday to attend the funeral of the former's infant niece.

Mrs. John Hart and daughter, Mrs. Charles Murwin of Magnolia, were pleasant callers at the home of Mrs. R. E. Bartle on Wednesday.

Edward Casey is visiting relatives at Rubicon.

McCarthy Brothers have started to fill silos and are meeting with great success.

Miss Nell McCarthy spent Thursday at the home of Miss Susie Nelson.

Mrs. C. Ludden son, Paul, and Mrs. C. McCarthy spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Mary McCarthy.

Dr. Johnson was a caller in this vicinity on Tuesday and Wednesday.

A large number of our dancing people attended the dance on Thursday at Cassady's and all hope to hear of another dance in the near future.

Warren Porter and Miss Eva Howard are to be married on Saturday, Sept. 20.

Robert Fessenden is assisting Charles Kelly with his tobacco harvest.

Mrs. A. Fessenden spent Thursday at the home of John Bates.

Miss Lucile Earle, who has been on the sick list, is much improved.

Mrs. William C. Schneider of Kan-kakee, Illinois, is spending the week in the village with relatives.

MONTICELLO

Monticello, Sept. 18.—Dr. H. Horne spent Thursday night in Monticello.

Miss Ella Buehler of Medford is visiting at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Albert Theiler.

Miss Anna Streiff is visiting friends at Beloit for a few days.

Miss Olga Hefty returned to Waukesha on Monday to resume her studies at Carroll college.

Miss Fannie Benkert was in Monticello Monday evening.

Rev. Jacob Elmer arrived home the last of the week from a visit of several weeks in different parts of Europe.

Rev. Elmer was one of the delegates to the International Sunday school convention which was held at Zurich, Switzerland, in July.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

The two classes organized on Tuesday by electing officers as follows: Senior class: President, Marie Dobson-Janesville; vice-president, Nellie Hendrickson, Orfordville; secretary, Grace Donnelly, Evansville; treasurer, Marion Williams, Beloit. Junior class: President, Hazel Gover, Janesville; vice-president, Lillian Hendrickson, Orfordville; secretary, Alice Carroll, Beloit; treasurer, Lillian Chamberlain, Janesville.

The principal work in the school was enjoyed by nearly all the members of the school. Some of the food was cooked in the fireless cooker.

Principal Lowth visited three country schools near Clinton on Monday and on Wednesday he inspected the work of three schools north of Janesville. Friday was spent in schools near Orfordville.

Miss Josephine Fitzgerald is now doing the work in the future preparatory to a declamatory contest which will be given about Thanksgiving. This work in expression is greatly needed and of much value to the students.

The principal has arranged a schedule of mothers' meetings in country schools. On Wednesday a meeting was held in District No. 2 towns of Milton and Fulton. On Friday another meeting took place in District No. 1 towns of Spring Valley and Avon.

The purpose is to interest the mothers in the work of the school and to help the teacher. Principal Lowth speaks about twenty minutes at each meeting. Some good recitation work is a part of the program. In one district two of the girls played musical selections.

The preliminary program of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association is on the meeting comes off in Milwaukee on November 6, 7, and 8. Teachers should plan to attend this great meeting. It is a wonderful inspiration.

Students will give a reception Wednesday evening, September 21. The program will consist of a literary program, refreshments, and a half hour of first class stereopticon slides. Nearly all the members of the agriculture class can now readily identify at least twenty common weeds. It is believed that such knowledge is valuable. Methods of weed extermination are also studied.

The first series of tests will be given next week. Final marks are the average of class work, tests and a final quarter examination.

Miss Jacobson inspected the work of Harry Cullen, Ben Sanda, and Edna Loomis near Avon and Emerald Grove, on Thursday.

Miss Jacobson is preparing a circular letter on Busy Work which will be sent out next week.

Arrangements are gradually being perfected for the county meeting of rural teachers in the interests of the rural schools. Let everybody boost.

The Clinton people are alive to the interests of education. They are doing things in the school there that are well worth while. Principal Puffer is showing a commendable progressive spirit. Principal Lowth was much interested on Monday on inspecting the things in the school there that are well worth while.

The training school is holding several good magazines which will be given out to the rural teachers for use in their schools for the benefit of the children.

One teacher in a country school writes in response to a note from the training school: "Your card received and my reply is this: We shall be glad to have you come. I will extend general and also a special invitation to all the mothers in my district."

That teacher has the right spirit.

The Currency Question

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

It is now the custom at every session of Congress to consider the Currency Question. It has taken Congress a long time to get up to date in this matter. Everyone else has been considering it from childhood up.

This year Congress is to pass a new Currency law and every good citizen should become familiar at once with the questions at issue. The principal Currency Question at present and also in the past and probably in the future is the following:

Why is Currency so scarce when we need it?

When the patriotic citizen has mused over this question until the answer seems indisputable he should proceed upon the following inquiries:

"Should our currency be made elastic or self-propagating like the potato?"

"Should the dollar bill in these times of high living be made large enough to be used as a blanket? Is it economically wiser to ship gold to Europe or to send it over with our mail in rich on condition that they stay there with it?

If the normal call value and peak load of our fiscal reserve should fluctuate to correspond with the total visible and undigested securities should time locks be placed on the American automobile?

Should there be a central depository such as John D. Rockefeller, or should every citizen be allowed to lug money around and perhaps lose it?

Should call money be under control of National banks and subtreasuries or should anybody be allowed to call it?

Should the national reserve be distributed in order to move the crops? Would it save the farmer the trouble of hitching up after threshing season?

We should not leave Congress to ponder these inflated questions unaided, but as patriotic citizens should at once secure samples of our national currency and do our duty in the great inquiry.

CLINTON

Clinton, Sept. 19.—The new black list was put in force this week and contains twenty-eight names, which is said to be the largest number ever put on the list.

The many friends of W. S. Jackson, who taught manual training in our schools last year, will be pleased to know he is very pleasantly located at Montezuma, Iowa, where he has charge of the mathematics in the high school, with an assistant, and he also has supervision of all manual training with an assistant to teach mechanical drawing.

Mrs. J. Q. Simmons and son Lee were here Wednesday. Lee enters the Northwestern University this next week.

Mrs. S. G. Lake's cousin, Charles W. Crosby, wife and son Duluth stopped here for a few days on their way to San Antonio, Tex., where they will spend the winter.

The following is the list of talent and dates for the citizens' lecture course this winter:

The Orpheum Male Quartette Friday evening, December 12.

Doctor Andrew Johnson, lecturer, Wednesday evening, January 28.

Crecent Concert Co., Monday evening, April 13.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Patchen of Janesville stopped off here between trains yesterday.

Miss Edna Woolston Shaw of Racine came out Monday evening to see her mother, returning Wednesday evening.

Dr. W. O. Thomas took George Miller to Beloit hospital yesterday, and removed the plaster cast from his broken leg, and found everything doing nicely.

Mrs. W. P. Woolston accompanied by her husband and daughter and Dr. Thomas went to Chicago this morning. Mrs. Woolston will consult a specialist and take a course of X-ray treatments.

Announcements were received here yesterday of the marriage of Miss Melitta Klingheltz of Manitowoc to Dr. Otis Hoyt King of Hudson, Wis. The ceremony was performed Sept. 18th. Miss Klingheltz taught in the local high school several years and has many friends here.

Dr. A. S. Woolston has been looking after his ranch at Crookston, Minn., for several days.

CHANGE IN STATUTE REDUCES STATE AID

That And Not Change in Policy Of Rock County Training School Accounts For Decrease.

Change in the statute governing state aid to county training schools and not any modification in the policy of the Rock County Training School is responsible for the decrease in the amount of state aid granted to it this year according to Superintendent O. D. Antisdel. The amended statute, Chapter 485, Laws of 1913, reads:

"Upon the receipt of such report, if it shall appear that the school has been maintained in a satisfactory manner for a period of not less than ten months during the year closing on the thirtieth day of the preceding June, the said superintendent shall make a certificate to that effect and file it with the secretary of state. Upon receiving such certificate, the secretary of state shall draw his warrant, payable to the treasurer of such school for an amount equal to the sum expended for the wages of daily employed and qualified teachers employed in the school for at least ten months during the school year, providing that a school employing two teachers shall not receive to exceed $3,000 and a school receiving three or more teachers shall not receive to exceed $3,500 in any one school year."

Heretofore the law has not required that all teachers towards whose wages an appropriation is made should teach the full term of ten months. The training school last year employed two teachers throughout the year and one assistant for part time. Its organization and plans for this year are practically the same and this accounts for the reduction in the amount of state aid from $3,500 to $2,800.

It is probable that next year a third teacher to teach the full ten months will be engaged as the new law which requires that no beginning teacher school after July 1, 1915, without a year of professional training is expected to greatly increase the attendance at the training schools. The six weeks summer session customary for such teachers will probably be abolished, changed in form or confined to such teachers as already have certificates.

TERRIBLE ITCHING OF SKIN TROUBLE

Small Red and Yellow Spots on Leg. Covered with Dry Scale. Had to Walk Floor Nights. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 3, Clarkfield, Minn.—"My trouble was of long standing. It started with some small red and yellow spots about the size of a pin head on my leg and every morning there was a dry scale on top covering the affected part and when those scales were falling off the itching was more than I could stand at times. The first year I did not mind it so much as it was only itching very badly at around my leg and the itching was terrible. I had to be very careful to have my clothing around the affected part very loose. At night time I often happened to scratch the sore in my sleep. Then I had to stand up, get out of bed and walk the floor. When I read the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I wrote for a sample and got it. To my surprise I was feeling relief after the second application. So I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and when I had used them I was nearly over the itching. So I got another box and that healed it all up so it looked smooth and fine, but I kept on with the Cuticura Soap for six weeks and the cure was complete." (Signed) S. O. Gordon, Nov. 20, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c and Cuticura Ointment 50c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Officially Endorsed

Across the seas, under the supervision of the most exacting automobile body in the United Kingdom, a Pathfinder car demonstrated its capabilities on a high gear motor test between London, Land's End, John O'Groats in Scotland and London, a tour of 1934.75 miles under an official Royal Automobile Club observer ENTIRELY WITHOUT THE USE OF LOW OR INTERMEDIATE GEARS.

After this trying test of engine flexibility and reserve power, the Pathfinder made an official record of 55.92 miles an hour on Brookland's motor speedway.

"101 REASONS"

To obtain this cherished certificate of performance, it was necessary for the Pathfinder to negotiate grades that had baffled every previous attempt by four cylinder motor cars.

For every RECORD there is a REASON.

SON. Our most interesting literature is aptly termed the "101 Reasons" and it is a fact that the Pathfinder record of always performing true to its name is best answered in this instructive little booklet.

A high gear test analyzes your car performance under conditions that you as an owner might meet with and is consequently the best test of motor flexibility, and even weight distribution.

HERE'S THE SECRET.

The Pathfinder car is built on scientific principles. Its four pillars of quality are:

- Quality of materials
- Quality of design
- Quality of workmanship
- Quality of finish and appearance.

Materials that are standard with manufacturers who have a reputation for producing the best are used. Parts are made according to our own patented designs and cannot be duplicated in any other car. Expert workmen build the Pathfinder car, no unskilled labor is employed.

LOOK IT OVER

The close attention to detail and exceedingly beautiful lines of the Pathfinder excite favorable comment whether on country road or city boulevard.

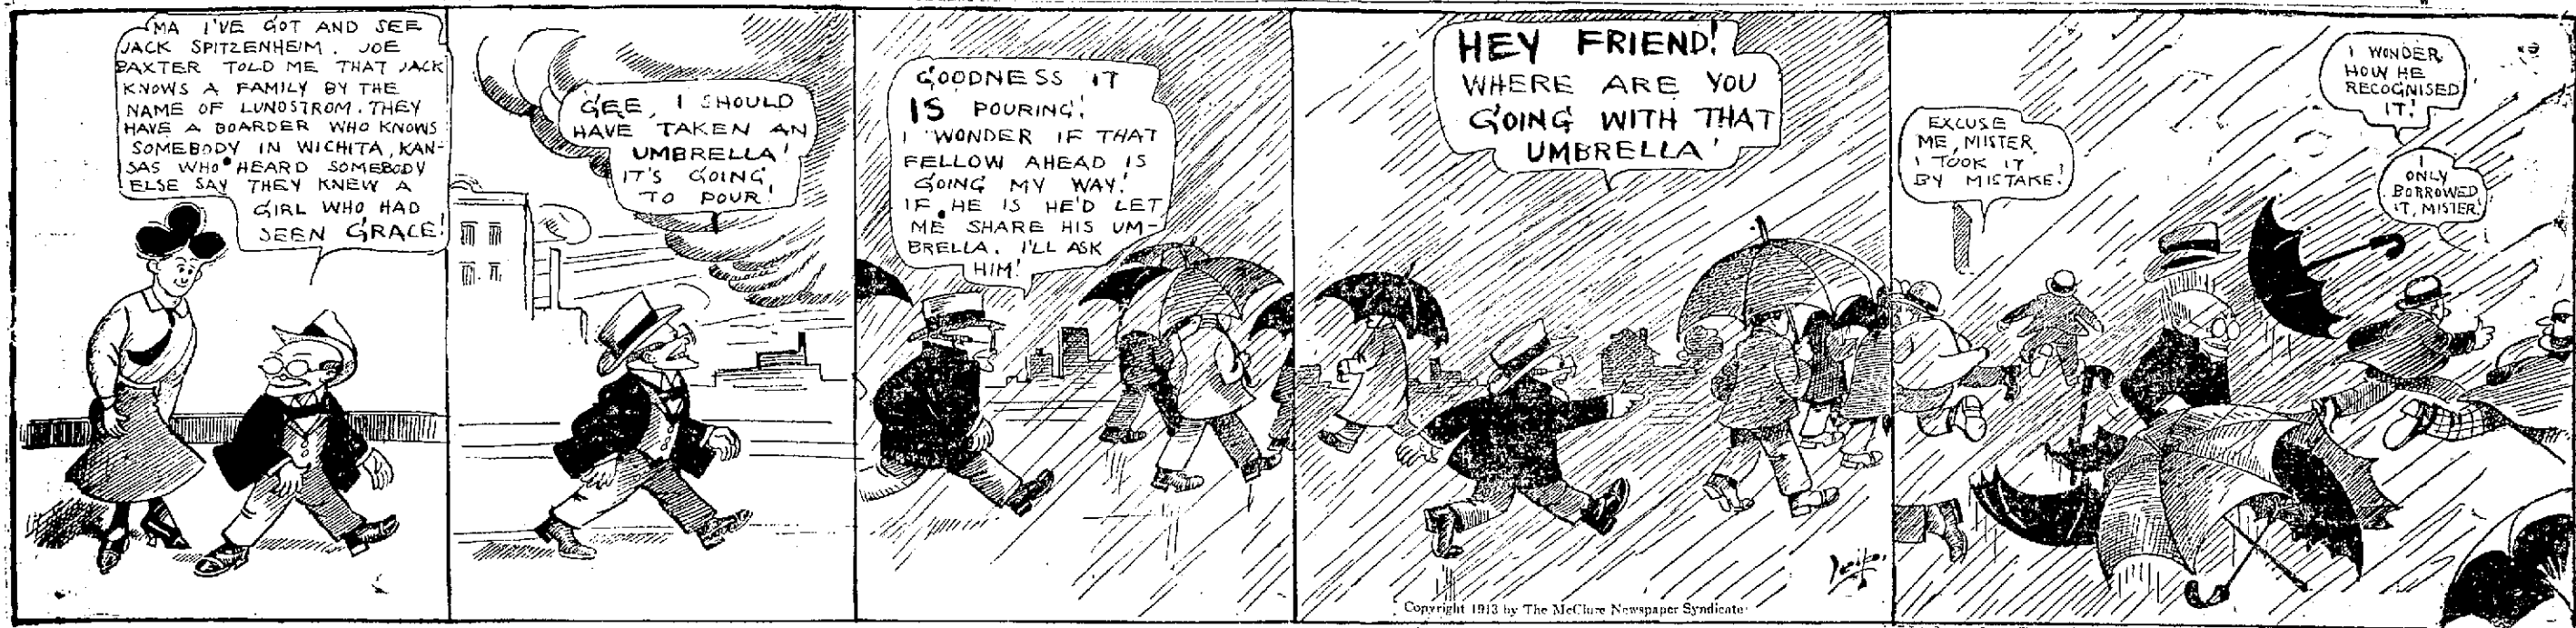

There is only one way you can check ALL our claims in regard to PATHFINDER QUALITY and that is by a personal inspection of the car. If it is convenient to call at our salesroom do so and we will endeavor to show you PARTICULAR points of interest about the car. Or just step to the telephone and make arrangements for a demonstration today. Note the number now. You will find us always ready and anxious to discuss the Pathfinder with you.

Around all day with an aching back.

Can't rest at night;

Enough to make any one "give out."

Doan's Kidney Pills are helping thousands.

They are for kidney backache;

And other kidney ills.

Here is Janesville proof of their merit:

Mrs. M. Smith, 921 Center St. Janesville, Wis., says: "I suffered severely at times from rheumatic pains and backache. My sides hurt me and sometimes my kidneys were sore. I noticed that my kidneys were not working freely. One of my neighbors told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at the People's Drug Co. As soon as I began using them I felt better and my kidneys were in much better shape. I recommended Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly now as I did three years ago when I told how much they did for me. I use Doan's Kidney Pills once in a while and they live up to all the claims made for them."

THE RED BUTTON

By WILL IRWIN

Author of
The City that Was, Etc.

Miss Estrilla pondered a time upon that while Rosalie made Swedish gymnastic movements with her sleepy eyes. Miss Estrilla twice set her lips to the words "cure."

"You did bring for me," she said, "just a little—but it was something I wanted to know. Do you think you can find more next time, if—"

"Now, my dear, put in Rosalie, "don't ask me that! I thought you were sensible. If I thought it would take such a bolt on you, guns and pistols wouldn't have driven me into this room with my spells. I can't tell you how hard I've been trying to stop this thing, which is bothersome to say the best about it—let's unlock the door while I think about it."

"But it would comfort me," she said, "if you could find more next time, if—"

"You're dear," she said, "but it is your troubles we all have in this world. But when a person's sick, she just lays an' lets it roll up in her, like, 'Well, now, let's see—Rosalie paused as though considering. 'Why don't I want to practise any more? It's the same old, the same game that's botherin' me. I tell you what I'll do, I won't try, an' won't stop resistin' the influence when it comes over me. An' I'll always be deaf, straight here. Perhaps it was sent to do us both good! That's settled. Now can't I do anything for you?'"

"As she sat upon the bed, setting things to rights, there came a knock at the door. Rosalie was about to open it, when an exclamation from Miss Estrilla stopped her.

"Listen," said Miss Estrilla, "if that is my brother, say nothing to him. He is—prejudiced."

"Why, of course not!" replied Rosalie. "An' don't you! I'm more anxious than you can be to keep this thing shut up. I'm the one that's got something to lose."

It was, in fact, Nolly the maid, announcing the doctor. And that visit gave Rosalie excuse to withdraw. Rosalie held that night another of her auditor conferences with Inspector McGee.

"Well, I've comin' out with it," she announced. "I've got to tell somebody. Somebody confesses at least once, which is my knowledge. I guess I've got your case started, Martin McGee."

"Then this fellow Wade—"

"You make me," said Rosalie, "you make me feel my mouth never told you anything at all. Wade A cop can't keep two ideas in his mind at one time, any more'n a horse. Martin McGee, you listen an' don't say a word until I'm through. With a logical consecutive ness almost surprising in Rosalie, she started her case from the beginning.

Tommy North's case of the diamond ring and which had set Rosalie on the trail of the discovery that the coverlet on Captain Hanks's bed had been wet with rain from the open window."

Inspector McGee broke his tactful silence and spoke.

"I explained that," he said, "I told you they opened the windows to let in air after they discovered the murder."

"Not remember?" said Rosalie, "it had stopped raining when the body was found—it had stopped when I came in," replied Rosalie.

"Had it?" inquired the Inspector.

"Yes, who's answer?" crowed Rosalie, and she proceeded with the little red button on the fire-escape, the discovery that Miss Estrilla had among her possessions a pair of red slippers with a button missing, and the final fact—the button matched.

Inspector McGee received that dramatic information with a long whistle of amazement.

"That sick woman!" he said, "Gee, I'd thought of examining her. But there didn't seem to be a chance on earth. I'd thought more about that brother of hers. But, of course, he'd left the house before the quarreling stopped—why Captain Hanks was alive—and didn't return until after they found the body." He pondered a moment. "But that ain't red evidence—yet."

"You give me a chance," replied Rosalie. She pursued her narrative then, setting forth her discovery that Estrilla was an assumed name and the discovery of Detective Ginnal about the history of the Perez family in Trinidad. She proceeded then to the seances, and to Miss Estrilla's attempt to frightening her out of control.

"An' say," added Rosalie, "if you don't think that minute or so was about the tightest squeeze I ever had, you miss a guess, that's all. Near broke me in two. I was all tuckered out before I got to my feet. I feel it yet. I had to pretend that my control had weakened me."

"Is that all?" asked McGee.

"Yes, An' it enough."

"Well, it's suspicious. But there's no real evidence. Nothing you can convict on. Just because one of her shoe-buttons was found on the fire-escape, and she's living under an assumed name, and the entrance to the room was through the window, it's no proof that a sick woman came down the fire-escape and killed a man standing up in front of her. You can't make a jury believe that. Suppose I pinch her—and her brother, too—and give 'em the Third Degree?"

"See here, Martin McGee," replied Rosalie, "I've been takin' all this trouble for spendin' my good time to get her to believe I'm a medium, if I ain't to be trusted to run this case? You can have your Third Degree afterwar'd—when I'm through with mine."

"That's so," replied McGee. "Well, anything I can do to help?"

"Yes. How long does it take to set a man to Trinidad? Or is there anybody in Port of Spain that you can get?"

"I've had a man there a week. Another case—missing burglar."

"That's good. Very important?"

"No. I guess he's been spared." "That's with us, if nothing else. This is a three-times whinin'. Now you just cable him—wait a minute. I'll write the message—git a pencil an' paper."

They were in a side street. A lamp-post threw a shaft of light across the stoop of a vacant house. Rosalie sat herself on the lowest step, and the note-book which McGee produced, and with many a phrase of lip and brow, composed the following message:

"Drop anything and get full information on the late Miguel Perez, canon grover, of Port of Spain, and his family, especially Juan his son, and a daughter, probably half-sister of Juan, name unknown. Details about life of the family, especially the smaller the better. Learn everything you can about first wife. Suggest pumping old family servants. Wire in full as you get the dope."

"There," concluded Rosalie, "an' a lot I'm goin' to cost, New York City for cable tolls."

McGee laughed as he put the note-book in his inner pocket.

"There are better jokes on me to-night," he said. "Well, if it turns out that Wade didn't do it, I'll be kinder glad. I've hated that fellow since I've kind of wanted to respect him, too. Say, this is one case where you can't keep out of court and the papers, ain't it?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied Rosalie. "Maybe we can fix it to slip out and let you all the credit—as usual."

The dig told.

"Well, I never asked you to," replied Inspector McGee in some confusion.

"That's right," acknowledged Rosalie, "but tellin' you about it once in a while keeps you in the right frame of mind."

"Say," said Martin McGee, returning to the main subject, "when they put this Estrilla woman through—she's the one—I can see the papers. 'Woman against woman. Ex-medium sends victim to the—'"

"Don't say that!" exclaimed Rosalie. "For God's sake, don't!"

He had been walking elbow to elbow, leaning a little upon him. Now she drew away. And much more that Martin McGee had intended to say, remained unsaid that evening.

CHAPTER XIV
The Final Test.

COULD we have said with Rosalie Le Grange through thirty years of her "mediumship," we would have found in all her assaults on the secrets of the human heart a certain few main roads to the intelligence of man and woman. Rosalie traveled these roads again and again, varying the method only by those infinitesimal touches which the artist knows. Her approach to Senorita Perez—known so far in these pages as Miss Estrilla—differed in no essential from her approach to a thousand love-lorn shop-girls, troubled mothers, perplexed business men, during thirty years in her old trade. She simply defined her methods a little for Miss Estrilla, as she had always for her "first-class customers."

There was the approach; a mist of hocus-pocus illuminated here and there with the glint of a secret surprising fact which the medium "could not possibly know." This was a period wherein the dupe was always unconvinced and fascinated. Some professed to be amused; and they showed it by giggles which died prematurely into long silences. Some pretended to be unconvinced; but they proved their conviction by brutal denials. Some put tests to her, obvious and subtle, according to their natures. None had ever attempted so daring and so clever a test as Miss Estrilla, with her pretended volution; and this was a bit of evidence, a guidepost which would have made slender appeal to Inspector McGee or to any jury that ever sat in judgment. Yet to Rosalie, skilled in weighing factors which no mortal policeman would ever perceive, adept at reading whole volumes of fact from the incidental dropping of a lip or lifting of an eyebrow, this was the most pertinent bit of evidence she had yet discovered. For those who had most to conceal, most to lose by the revelation of their souls to a blackmailer or a spy, were the very people who put such tests on her, and the harder the test, she had always found, the deeper and blacker the ultimate secret.

Could we have followed Rosalie through all these years, we should have discovered another most illuminating fact—this one a light on that contradictory and complex character. It was her impudence, as time wore on, which certain blasphemous on human affection which she had committed lightly during the period of her beginnings. It is a dreadful thing to barter with the yearnings of parents for departed children, of bereaved wives for the husband gone before—with man's deepest and highest emotion, all for the paltry fee of a discredited profession. In his early period, Rosalie had committed this sin of the heart lightly, without inner blunishment. There—as always in youth—her morals were the morals of environment. The thoughts of youth are not voices, but echoes.

When the time came for her to think on her own account, when, out of her infinitely diverse characteristics she began to form character, Rosalie Le Grange saved her conscience with the reflection that she was, after all, doing these people good; that she never intended, as others did, for big name; that she took only a legitimate fee and gave in return consolation and good advice. That served her in her reflective forties, the period when we have walked over the summit of life, when in lonely days and wakeful midnight the thought of man's ultimate and pierces all our meditations on the future. In those sombre lights, things become plain and the blinding light of full active days blinds us. And Rosalie, adept at reading other hearts, had read her own.

For there was a strong streak of Scotch in Rosalie. From the race of warlocks and druids, on the edge of the infinite had she got her taste and talent for mysticism, her genuine clairvoyance—whatever that may be. From it had she taken her love for mystery, her deep hidden longing for romance. From it, finally, had she taken a conscience which, like a tree wind-planted in the cleft of a rock, grew and matured to bear fruit.

In spite of an adverse environment, in these forties, conscience showed her. In these forties, conscience showed her. In these forties, conscience showed her. In these forties, conscience showed her.

She could no longer traffic with grief to the shame of her own heart. In her revelation to Martin McGee, she had revealed the truth, as it was, and sources of her actions. It was her habit to conceal the very springs of her romantic life brought forth, for conscience and conscience alone. The hidden excitement and romance of the profession, the contact with other and strange minds, the opportunity for basking, for guiding destinies—all these things, she had no longer endure the treacheries and sacrifices of her own method.

Here, now, when she had thought he had been behind her, she was embarked on the most treacherous and venture of all. She was playing with human affection, not for the ultimate comfort and consolation of the dupe, but for an end which she dreaded to think of. She had to think of it, she had to think of it, she had to think of it.

It was true, on the afternoon when she heard through the half-open door Constance's weak appeal to Betsy Barbara. She faltered no more—exactly, but her lonely communings with herself—her very distress for the work drove her to hasten it, as one drinks a noxious draught at a single mouthful. Under the pretense that her obsession was driving her, that she had bottled it up too long, she just had to come out of her. Rosalie Le Grange multiplied the seances with Miss Estrilla to the point of danger and incantation.

In the long day after the session in which Miss Estrilla had tried the test of the fictitious revolver, she was back again. This time—having assurance that this was the true line of attack—she brought back the Victoria and Miguel, let her according to Doctor Carver, was the stronger; she spoke much, though vaguely. Miguel dropped only a few phrases—now Spanish, now English. In this session, Miss Estrilla never moved nor spoke. Rosalie, during a look at her through her long lashes, perceived that her attitude was tense, rigid.

In the long preliminary passages with a difficult subject, Rosalie's experience had taught her there is a certain moment when the dupe crosses the line between prudence and abstinence, when in a quiet self-contained person like Miss Estrilla, the moment comes, generally, with the first question. After that, the course is as easy as living. The dupe, once the defenses are broken, is eager to believe. Where most true and irregular mind turned every new and irregular fact to the disadvantage of the medium, now the eager mind turns every fact to her advantage. "Every sheet's ghost," Rosalie had remarked time and again. "Hardest thing is hold 'em back. There's nothin' they can't swallow." In this, her third seance, Rosalie was proceeding as cautiously as an elephant on a bridge, waiting for that first and vital question.

It came at the fourth sitting. By this time, Rosalie had begun to receive cable reports from Port of Spain. The detective, it appeared, was a policeman of singular fidelity or of singular ammen. Taking literally the order about "little details," he had filed one of the most curious dispatches in the annals of the New York Police Department. It glittered with gems for Rosalie Le Grange. Especially was it strong in facts concerning Miss Estrilla's relations with her mother. Their rides together, when she was a little girl and the family was conspicuous on the island, the circumstance of an accident to one of the horses, even pet names and small, cold, and surprising details—all this he set forth fully, beyond doubt, he had found the "old family servant" mentioned in the telegram of instruction and milked him dry.

So at this fourth seance Rosalie brought not Miguel—that were too great a strain on her Spanish—but Victoria—introduced her, as usual, with vague sentences, growing always more definite and crystallizing finally into the vital startling fact. Rosalie was speaking freely now, her pose that of a dead trance.

"Do you remember," she asked, "the time they carried you home as though you were dead, from the stable, and you revived and spoke to me when they brought you in the door?"

"Do you remember," she asked, "the time they carried you home as though you were dead, from the stable, and you revived and spoke to me when they brought you in the door?"

him in a ditch, as dead as old Jack Homer, and the Pappers' Corner his nameless bones we'll pitch. And once this weary wanderer had dreams as full of splendor as any you have known; and he has hopes of rising to heights of fame surprising, where he would stand alone. But ere he sought the pleasure he'd give some days to pleasure, some hours to wassail high; and so he played and rambled, in golden chances hee!
